A SERIOUS CONFLAGRATION.

Burton's Stable with Many Horses, Carriages, Etc., Destroyed by Fire—Many Dwellings Badly Scorched and Families Made Homeless—Loss About $18,000.

Shortly after four o'clock yesterday morning an alarm of fire was sounded from box 42 and those who turned out witnessed one of the most disastrous fires which has visited Newport in a long time. The fire originated in Benj. Burton's stable, a large building extending from Levin street to William street. The lower part, and the south end of the upper part, of this building, was occupied by the Newport Omnibus Company, of which Mr. Burton is president, for stabling purposes, while the second story in the north end was finished off into a dance hall. This hall was rented Thursday night to a party of colored people who were having a dance, and at about 11 o'clock Mr. Burton, having got his rent for the premises, went home, leaving the hall in charge of the dancers who were to see that the place was properly closed when the amusements were over. Some time after 4 o'clock the next morning he was suddenly awakened with a vague idea that there was a fire though he could not tell whether he had heard a cry of fire or not. Seeing the reflection of fire from the window he slipped on his overalls and went out. Then discovering that it was his stable and that the flames had already broken through the roof, he hurried to the premises in the hope of saving the horses. Opening the stable door he was met by an immense profusion of smoke, but the fire being overhead he could see the horses, some of which, stationed at the south end of the building, were already suffocating. He bravely entered and succeeded in rescuing six horses out of the twelve which the stable contained. He was then so nearly suffocated that he fell to the floor, but having presence of mind he succeeded in crawling to the door where he soon recovered. He then re-entered the building where he succeeded in saving several harnesses and other articles. This building was totally destroyed together with six horses, five omnibuses, four hurdies, two victorias, one buggy, one landau, one half-phaeton, about one and a half tons of hay and about $300 worth of tools. There was also considerable furniture, belonging to various parties, stored in the upper part of the building, which was also burned. The insurance on the building was $5000, $2500 in the Niagara of New York and $2500 in the Merchants. The stock was insured in the Royal of England for $2750 as follows: $1000 on the horses, $1250 on carriages and $500 on harnesses. The total loss of Mr. Burton and the Omnibus Co. is estimated at $12,000.

This is a thickly settled neighborhood and had the wind blown from the west the south side of Levin street and the north side of William street must have been swept to the avenue, but the wind was north and the roofs of the neighboring buildings being wet from recent rains, the fire department was enabled to confine the flames to two or three buildings, only one dwelling being totally ruined. This was a house on William street owned by Constant Smith and occupied by four colored families, William Reilly, Mrs. Harriet Gibson, John Weeden and Edward Wilson. The escape of all the members of these families was miraculous, the clothing on one of the beds in which children were sleeping having taken fire before the children were rescued. The furniture and wearing apparel of these families were a total loss. Loss on the building $2000; insured for $1000 in the Commerce of Albany.

The tenement house owned by Miss Anne Brown was damaged about $1000; insured in the Providence Mutual for $500. The residences of Catherine Boyd and John Burns were also damaged but were covered by insurance.

The fire is thought to be the result of carelessness on the part of the dancers as the fire undoubtedly originated in the upper part of the building and was discovered almost as soon as the dance broke up. One of the neighbors, in fact, says that he was aroused by the cries of the dancers themselves and, looking out of his window saw the flames coming out of the ventilator in the roof. This would indicate that the fire was discovered before the party had left the hall.

A Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Julia P. Liverpool, a colored woman, had a narrow escape from death by burning Sunday. She was at the beach in company with her husband watching the process of clam baking, when her dress came in contact with a burning brand which had been thrown from the pile. In an instant her lower garments were in flames and but for the promptness of Thos. B. Wilkinson and others in wrapping a piece of canvas about her and smothering the flames she must have perished. As it was she escaped with a slight burning about the lower limbs and body. She was removed to her home in a carriage.

Mr. Geo. H. Norman was in town yesterday.

The Campaign Organizations.

The Blaine and Logan Regiment and the Cleveland and Hendricks Battalion are now full and outnumber any similar organizations of previous campaigns in Newport. The Republican regiment comprises ten companies of forty-five men each, which, together with the colonel and his general and personal staff, numbers fully 500 men. In the Democratic battalion are eight companies of forty-five men each, which, including the general and personal staffs, numbers 400 strong. In addition to the battalion an association, to be known as the Isaac Bell Association, has been formed with a membership of about fifty gentlemen which will parade with the battalion, in citizen's dress.

The uniforms of both organizations have been ordered and are daily expected at their respective headquarters, when Newport streets are destined to be illuminated with torchlight processions and to resound with cheers for the candidates of the two great parties. The first of these street parades will probably be made next week, the Democrats having decided to make theirs on or before October first.

The following named gentlemen compose the personal staff of Colonel Andrew K. McMahon commanding the Blaine and Logan Regiment:

W B Sherman, Jr	Leander K Carr
A B Corbin	Arthur Brightman
W E Landers	George Swan
Geo A Littlefield	Ed P Swan
John P Sanborn	G B Reynolds
W H King	B C Brown
Fred M Hammett	John A Gibson
W J Swinburne	E T Bosworth
Henry Taylor	J F Flynn, Jr
Harwood E Read	W J Easton
Thomas P Peckham	William Hamilton
Frank G Harris	John H Stacy
William G Ward, Jr	A B Gladding
John Gilpin	Geo L Ferrin
John C Seabury	Chas T Hopkins

The Olympian Club Rink.

The announcement that this popular resort is to be closed for the season on the 30th inst., is most regretfully received by a large number of our citizens and others who have derived so much pleasure from its entertainments during the summer. The management, however, proposes to make the last week a brilliant one and leave a good impression upon its many patrons until they re-open in the spring. Another grand gala entertainment has been arranged for the children this afternoon, and the grand carnival, which is so much talked about, both here and in the neighboring cities and towns, comes off next Tuesday evening.

The Newports '83, too, are willing to aid in one good entertainment before the close. They have challenged the old Newports to a contest at polo. The '83s play a good game now. They defeated the Tauntons three straight goals Wednesday evening and believe they can make the old Newports work if they will meet them.

Meetings at Republican Headquarters

At a largely attended meeting of the executive committee of the Blaine and Logan Club Thursday evening, it was voted to hold meetings at the Club headquarters, the old Unitarian Church on Mill street, every Thursday evening. A committee was appointed to secure speakers for each meeting, either home talent or talent from abroad to address these meetings. The first meeting of this kind will be held next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock when it is expected that there will be several good speakers present. The church will seat comfortably between 600 and 700 persons and it is hoped that it will be filled every evening. The public, whether Republicans, Democrats, Independents or Prohibitionists are cordially invited to attend these meetings. Besides the speaking there will be singing by the Blaine and Logan Glee Club.

More Robberies.

About two o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Benjamin Shepley living at 23 Third street was awakened and looking out of the window saw a thick set man climbing the lamp post at the corner of Poplar street. He extinguished the light, then went to the grocery store of R. P. Hamilton, 25 Third street, and removing the shutter broke out a light of glass. By this time Mrs. Shepley was roused to a sense of what the man was up to and she gave the alarm which frightened the would-be thief away. Some person, probably the same as spoken of above, broke into the summer residence of Miss Jane Morris, of Philadelphia, on Washington street, sometime during the night. He only got as far as the basement, however, when he was also frightened away. Little plunder, if any, was secured. From the description given by Mrs. Shepley of the person about Mr. Hamilton's store, the police think they know who the rogue is, and he will undoubtedly be brought to account.

Death of Mrs Stanhope.

Anne Maria, wife of Mr. Charles L. Stanhope, died at her residence on John street on Tuesday last, in the 56th year of her age. She had long been a great sufferer, having been a confirmed invalid for many years, and death to her came as a blessing. She was a devoted wife, a loving mother and a sincere friend, and her absence will be deeply mourned by all who knew her, though none would recall her.

Her funeral was solemnized yesterday at her late residence and was attended by a large gathering of mourning friends and relatives.

Trinity Church was prettily decorated with plants and flowers Thursday, the occasion being the marriage of Mary Grace, daughter of the late Charles H. Russell, to Mr. W. Strother Jones of New York. Rev. Dr. Samuel Cooke, of New York, assisted by Rev. G. J. Magill of this city, performed the ceremony.

The officers of the Isaac Bell, Jr., association are:—

President—Stephen P. Slocum.
Vice President—Lewis Brown.
Secretary—M. C. Leary.
Treasurer—J. H. Cottrell.
Marshal—J. E. Leddy.

A. Blaine & Logan flag has been thrown to the breeze on Broadway.

Redwood Library.

For some years past an attempt has been made to raise a fund of $10,000 for current expenses. The money has been very much needed by the library as in these days of free libraries very few people are willing to pay to take books from a private library. The expenses of running the institution has been greater than the income. This $10,000 is now nearly all raised and the income of the amount will soon be available for the use of the library. This sum has been given largely by our summer residents, the largest amount having been given by Mr. H. G. Marquand, who has generously devoted $3000 to the fund. Mrs. Edward King has given $1000, John Foster $1000 and Geo. Peabody Wetmore $500.

We understand one of our wealthy townsmen has offered to give $1000 if they will increase this fund to $30,000. Such a generous offer ought to spur the friends of this ancient institution to renewed work if to accomplish this desired object, for certainly the money is needed, and with that fund the library could be put in such a condition as to make it a pride to all Newport.

At the last meeting of the board of directors the librarian, Mr. Thurston, tendered his resignation and Mr. Richard Bliss, Jr., was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Bliss was the librarian of the Northern Transcontinental Survey and is spoken of very highly by all who know him.

A Handsome Tribute.

The Hon. Levi P. Morton our minister to France and one of our well known summer residents has erected in the Congregational Church at Bristol N. H. a handsome memorial tablet to the memory of his father, Rev. Daniel Oliver Morton, who was for many years a pastor of that Church. The tablet is three feet and four inches in width by six feet in height. It is wrought from the finest Italian marble, highly polished, and is supported in position by elegantly sculptured marble brackets, and finished at the top with moulded scroll cornices, surmounted with a finely wrought gothic cross. The tablet was designed by Mr. W. F. York, who has executed the work with his own hand, and as a work of art is highly creditable to the pencil and chisel of the artist. The inscription is neatly engraved in plain gothic letters, colored black, and with a background of white polished marble is very legible. The following is the inscription:

IN MEMORY OF
REV. DANIEL OLIVER MORTON,
PASTOR OF THE
CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES
IN SHOREHAM AND SPRINGFIELD, VT.,
AND WINCHENDON, MASS.,
FROM 1812 TO 1841
AND OF THIS CHURCH FROM
JUNE, 8, 1842,
TO THE DAY OF HIS DEATH,
MARCH 27, 1852.
"THEY THAT TURN MANY TO RIGHTEOUSNESS SHALL SHINE AS THE STARS FOREVER AND EVER."
ERECTED BY HIS SON,
LEVI PARSONS MORTON.

Parade of the Cleveland and Hendricks Battalion.

The Cleveland and Hendrick's Battalion will make their first exhibition parade on Wednesday evening next, Oct. 1st. The battalion will form on the Parade at 8 o'clock and will proceed up Farewell down Poplar to Washington street, through Washington to Bridge, through Bridge to Thames, down Thames to Young, up Young to Spring, down Spring to Perry, up Perry to Bellevue avenue, through Bellevue avenue and Kay street to Ayrault, down Ayrault street, Broadway, Spring and Mill streets to headquarters where they will be dismissed. The colonel commanding desires the citizens along the line to be as generous with fireworks and other illuminations as possible. It is expected that there will be several Providence companies or battalions in line, and our Democratic friends expect to make a fine show on that occasion.

K of P. Visitation.

On Wednesday evening of next week the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias of this State will make a visitation to Redwood Lodge No. 11 of Newport. The grand lodge will be accompanied by about one hundred members of the uniform rank of the order who will come from Providence by special steamer. On arriving in Newport they will be met by Redwood Lodge and escorted through the principal streets of the city to Casino Hall Church street, where a collation will be served. After the collation the Grand Lodge will repair to the hall of the Redwood Lodge where the remainder of the evening will be spent in the secret work of the order.

Prohibitionists in Caucus

A well attended prohibitory caucus was held at the State House Monday evening. L. D. Davis was chosen chairman and C. R. Thurston secretary, after which remarks were made by Rev. Frank Reader, Rev. E. W. Ryder, Dr H. R. Storer, A. C. Titus, B. W. Pearce and others. The following gentlemen were chosen delegates to the State convention which met in Providence Thursday: Rev. Frank Reader, W. B. Franklin, Dr. H. R. Storer, Michael Butler, Lucius D. Davis, Patrick Flanagan, Philip S. Taggart, Patrick J. Royle, Albert W. Luther, A. C. Titus, Silas Dickerson and D. B. Fitts.

Democratic Meeting.

The Cleveland and Hendricks party in Newport propose to have a grand ratification meeting in the Opera House one week from tonight, Saturday October 4th. Ex-Lieut. Gov. Dorsheimer of New York will be one of speakers. Hon. John A. Cummings of Fall River will also be present, and it is expected that either Hon. Josiah Quincy or Dr. Wm. Everett of Massachusetts will represent the Independent element of the party.

Captain Ethan C. Briggs, who died in Kinsman, Ohio, the 23d of last month, in the 80th year of his age, was formerly a resident of this city, where he married in 1834 Hannah C. Stanhope, a sister of the late Capt. John R. Stanhope. In 1848 he removed to Ohio, where he resided until his death. His wife died twenty years since. He leaves two children, James Thurston Stanhope, now living in Colorado, and Sarah R. Standart, a resident of Texas.

REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING.

The Nominations of Blaine and Logan Ratified at the Opera House Wednesday Evening by a Large and Enthusiastic Audience.

The Republicans of Newport city and county met en masse at the Opera House Wednesday evening for the ratification of the nominations of James G. Blaine and John A. Logan, and if a large and intelligent audience be any criterion there can be no question as to the popularity of these two candidates, in this section at least. The house was completely filled with an audience composed almost entirely of men, and the strict attention paid to the remarks of the various speakers showed their deep interest in the question of the hour.

The out of town speakers, Senator Nelson W. Aldrich and Congressman Henry J. Spooner of Providence, and Dennis J. Sheridan of Fall River, were met at the train by committees from the Blaine and Logan club and driven to the Aquidneck House from which place, after supper, they, together with ex-Governor Van Zandt, were taken in charge by the Blaine and Logan Regiment and escorted over a circuitous route to the Opera House. The procession was an imposing one and was followed by a constantly increasing crowd of enthusiastic citizens until, when the Opera House was reached, the audience which gained admittance was only a fraction compared with the gathering forced to remain outside. The gallery was reserved for the Blaine and Logan regiment, which completely filled it, while the stage was occupied by officers of the club and invited guests, prominent among whom were ex-Lieut. Gov. H. H. Fay, Mayor Franklin, Collector J. H. Cozzens, Hon. T. Mumford Seabury, Clark H. Burdick, Geo. A. Littlefield, Gen. A. G. Lawrence, Col. A. C. Landers, Rev. M. Van Horne, Rev. F. J. Cooper, Lt. Commander T. F. Jewell, Samuel Carr, T. W. Wood, John G. Weaver, H. W. Clarke, W. A. Peckham, Capt. John S. DeBlois, Henry N. Ward, James G. Topham, Wm. B. Sherman, Anthony Stewart, James B. Brown, Wm. C. Langley, D. C. Denham, C. F. D. Fayerweather, J. E. Seabury, Dr. H. E. Turner, J. G. Stevens, D. T. Pinniger, David A. Pratt, J. H. Goddard and A. J. Ward of Newport; Nathaniel Peckham, William Smith, Alden Barker and Robert S. Chase of Middletown, and R. J. Merrihew and C. L. Slocum of New York.

The meeting was presided over by Hon. George Peabody Wetmore, president of the Blaine and Logan club, who introduced, as the first speaker, Hon. Nelson W. Aldrich.

Mr. Aldrich spoke at length upon the tariff and showed to his interested audience by an intelligent and convincing argument that the protective policy, protection alike to the individual and to the country, was the safeguard of the nation and the cause, in a great measure, of the present prosperity of American people and the phenomenal growth of the country since 1861. The question of tariff legislation, said the speaker, is the paramount issue of this campaign. It is a vital question and one which concerns every citizen of the country, both male and female. The principle of protection has nothing whatever to do with the surplus revenue now so much talked about; protection might be preserved and the revenue reduced two-thirds, or it might be preserved and the revenue increased two-thirds. This talk of surplus revenue and cry for tariff reform means simply free trade. There is no logical difference between absolute free trade and tariff for revenue only. The theories upon which the principle of free trade are based have been discarded by every intelligent people England and Holland are to-day the only free-trade countries in Europe. Would you make a change in the interests of British manufactures and the few houses of their agents in New York, and accept a theory which every intelligent thinker abroad has discarded?

In answer to the claim that protective tariff is in the interest of capital rather than of labor, the speaker quoted from statistics showing the relative conditions of the laboring classes in England and America, from 1860 to 1883. These statistics show that the wages, for the same class of labor, amount to 77 per cent. more in the United States than in Great Britain, that is, that a mechanic getting $10 per week in England would receive $17 for the same labor in the United States. Then comes the argument that the additional cost of living in this country more than offsets the increase in compensation received for work. The fallacy of this argument however the speaker made quite as perceptible as that of the other by statistics which showed the expense of living in the United States to be only 5 8 per cent. more than in England. Deduct the 5 8 per cent. from the 77 per cent. and you will find the absolute increase of American wages over those of England to be 71.2 per cent. And, now, said the speaker, can you tell of a man who is going to vote for this free trade? I believe, he added, when the issues of this campaign are presented as they must be the laboring classes will decide in favor of James G. Blaine and John A. Logan. The candidate of the Democratic party is silent on this issue and his supporters do not dare to take a stand. They would like to be protectionists in Rhode Island and free-traders in the South, but it won't work. Only once have the Democrats had a tariff plank in their platform, That was four years ago when they declared for "tariff for revenue only."

The speaker closed his eloquent address with the remark "They malign the Republican candidate to make James G. Blaine submit to the same treatment as that of James A. Garfield and Ulysses S. Grant, but the people put their foot down then and elected them, and by God's help we will elect James G. Blaine in November."

The next speaker introduced was Dennis J. Sheridan, Esq., an Irish orator of Fall River, who, after giving several pertinent reasons why his people should no longer support the Democratic party, made an eloquent appeal for their support and aid in the election of Blaine and Logan in November.

Congressman Spooner was the next speaker and as he stepped to the front of the stage he was received with enthusiastic applause. He gave a brief but interesting history of the Republican party during the past quarter of a century and of the prosperity, progress and growth of the country under its administration. This prosperity of the past, said he, is due to the protective policies of the country, and now shall we retrace our steps? Shall we allow Great Britain to dictate to us in regard to our tariff laws? If you wish the tariff laws of this country the same as those of Great Britain, why did you come here? If free trade is to be the policy here then the wages of labor must be cut down to those of Great Britain. If foreign goods are to flood our markets what is to become of our men and women engaged in similar manufacture here? Protective tariff is a benefit to manufacturer and laborer alike. The speaker was in favor of honest government and to show that that was what was being had under Republican administration he gave the average amount lost on every $1000 of the public money during the various administrations since Buchanan's time. During Buchanan's administration the total loss on each $1000 was $3 81, and under no administration had this loss been less than several dollars until Lincoln's administration when the party, notwithstanding it had a war on its hands through it all, succeeded in reducing it to 76 cents. Under Johnson the loss per $1000 was 57 cents; under Grant, 54 cents; under Hayes, three mills, and under Arthur thus far, one mill and eight-tenths of a mill.

The speaker closed his remarks with brief but eloquent mention of the Republican candidates. He said, if ever a nominee received a fair nomination, without trickery and without machine work, it was James G. Blaine and the Republican party never better expressed its wish than when it nominated Mr. Blaine who has been a leader in all the great attainments of the party. John A. Logan, the nominee for Vice President, scarcely less a statesman than a soldier, has attained his high position of to-day through his own industry and efforts.

With Mr. Cleveland without a record and Mr. Hendricks with too much record, said the speaker, when the roll is called in November, Newport will not be in the rear of her sister towns and cities in declaring for those principles which the Republican party have sustained in the past and are prepared to, and will, sustain in the future.

Ex-Governor Van Zandt was next called upon and was received with long-continued cheers, but owing to the lateness of the hour he begged to be excused from speaking, promising the audience a two-hours' address at some future meeting. He said that he had come there to show them by his presence and by his voice that he was with them in the glorious cause, heart and soul. The meeting then closed with three cheers for Blaine and Logan and three more for the Republican party and its protective policy.

The exercises during the evening had been interspersed with excellent music by the Newport Orchestra and by the regiment quartette.

SUPREME COURT.

September Term—Second Week.

The court opened Monday morning at 10 o'clock before Justice Matteson. The first case called for trial was that of John A. Brannan, appellant, vs. the Court of Probate, brought by the plaintiff to prevent the probating of the will of his father, the late John C. Brannan. The counsel for plaintiff asked for a few days' delay, owing to the absence of his client. This was refused and the will was approved.

The reperin suit of Stephen P. Slocum vs. Capt. John W. Downing, involving the ownership of an old painting of Washington square, the particulars of which were published in these columns at the time of the replevin, was decided in favor of Mr. Slocum.

In the case of William C. Townsend, trustee, vs. Alexander P. Sisson, defendant submits to judgment for plaintiff for $198 28 and costs.

In the case of Samuel Engs and wife vs. James M. K. Southwick, for trespass of a certain highway on Champlin's wharf, verdict was rendered for defendant.

In the case of Holder N. Wilcox, administrator, vs. George A Sayer, to recover a bank book, alleged to belong to the estate under administration, verdict was rendered for the defendant.

Mary Shea was granted a divorce from John Shea.

In the replevin suit of William Hamilton vs. Caroline M. Seymour, et al., judgment for plaintiff in the sum of 10 cents, damages and costs.

On Thursday the court was adjourned to Monday.

Real Estate Sales.

Hattie A. Saunders, guardian of the estate of Martha S. and S. Leslie Saunders, has sold all the right, title and interest of her said wards in and to an undivided one-half part of the estate on Thames street adjoining C. E. Hammett's on the north, to Robert S. Chase for $1625.20; and Sarah R. Saunders and others have sold their right, title and interest in the other half to the same party for $1, etc.

John Shanahan has sold 5724½ square feet of land on Friendship street to Mrs. Ann Fagan for $1, etc.

Farewell to "Hazel Kirke."

On next Wednesday evening Oct. 1st, a most interesting performance will be given at the Opera House, it being none other than the farewell representation in Newport of the world famous "Hazel Kirke", which has been before the public for five continuous years, and which has been played upwards of 3500 times. It has charmed thousands, and caused thousands to weep, with its pure, simple, and powerful story. It has gone to all hearts, and the world is better for having witnessed it. Surely its farewell should be signalized by a rousing "bumper at parting." The Madison square Theatre has given it the strongest cast this year which it has had. Mr. C. W. Couldock, as the iron willed miller, still remains, and to the strength of his name has been added that of Annie Russell, the original "Esmeralda," who has been especially engaged for the role of "Hazel." Miss Russell's Esmeralda was one of the most exquisite creations ever on the stage, and still holds a warm place in the affections of theatre goers. The other members of the cast are all artists of the first rank, so that the farewell performances of "Hazel Kirke" will be an affair to be remembered. Elegant souvenirs have been prepared for this occasion and will be presented to each lady in attendance.

Mrs. Lucy M Breese.

The very able correspondent of the Providence Journal records under date of Sept. 3d the passing away of "one of Newport's best, most noble and self sacrificing of women." This and all else that has been said of Mrs. Breese is most true and well deserved.

In the MERCURY of Sept. 6 there appeared a record of her beautiful life and "noteworthy qualities which she inherited from a long line of distinguished ancestry." It may be permissable for one who remembers her from the time her parents returned from Virginia and settled in Newport, to make some corrections in the "genealogy" of her family, as given in the MERCURY.

Judge Lyman, the grandfather of Mrs Breese, had three daughters who resided in Newport, the eldest and mother of Mrs. Breese, Mrs. R. K. Randolph, and the next eldest Mrs. Benjamin Hazard, were married in the fine old historic house on Broad street, and many years after his youngest daughter was married to John Easton Esq., and their home for years was the old Easton house, at the Beach, which was handsomely fitted up and furnished for her reception as a bride. Oliver H. Perry, son of Com. Oliver H. Perry did not marry a daughter of Judge Lyman (as stated in the MERCURY) but the second daughter of R. K. Randolph and a younger sister of Mrs. Breese. Judge Randolph of Providence, and Rev. T. L. Randolph of the Episcopal Church, were her brothers, yet by some inadvertance, notwithstanding the difference in name they are represented in the MERCURY article as the sons of Judge Lyman. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman consisted of eight sons and four daughters, all living to advanced age with the exception of Mrs. Gov. Lemuel H. Arnold and Hiscox Daniel, who died in his youth, or early manhood. After the marriage of the two older daughters Judge Lyman left Newport with his family and settled in North Providence where happily his revered name is perpetuated in a grandson, the Hon. Daniel Lyman, now the resident proprietor of the Lyman homestead farm and manor.

Mrs. Mary Wanton—the great-grandmother of Mrs. Breese—lived to a very old age with her granddaughter, the wife of Hon. Benjamin Hazard (a name well-remembered and esteemed by many members of the legal profession) whose devotion and care were unremitting to the close of her long life. Here in her own home, the home of so much genial hospitality during the life of her husband and the residence of her most accomplished son-in-law, she welcomed her children to the third and fourth generation, to her hearthstone. It is pleasant to recall the scene as she received her friends in the sunny room overlooking the garden and communicating with the south parlor of the mansion, now the property and residence of her two great-granddaughters Miss E. L. and Miss M. W. Hazard. Mrs. Wanton was a daughter of Henry Bull, the Attorney General and not of Gov. Bull as recently stated in the Providence Journal. A sketch of her father's life and character appears in "Updike's Memoirs of Distinguished Men of the Rhode Island Bar." She was baptized by Bishop Berkeley who was a friend of her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph resided in Virginia some years after their marriage, returning to Newport with a little family and selecting a home on Broad street up on the east side near the old paternal property of the ancestors of Mrs. Randolph. Here Mrs. Breese in her girlhood found congenial society in the companionship of her mother's more youthful sisters. She presented a strong contrast to them in her southern complexion, features and carriage and gained much from them by contact with their more spirited and aggressive dispositions. She inherited a love of good literature which happily was combined with a faithful attention to all domestic duties, and thus she became the devoted and confidential companion of a mother whose mental gifts and attainments were of the highest order. Her father's house was a most attractive centre for much of the best society of the town, a true outgrowth of the ancestral home. In this old house the gallant and popular Tom Breese (for the shortening of the prefix was accepted as a term of endearment by his brothers of the navy,) became her accepted lover and ever faithful and devoted husband.

So many obtruding thoughts and memories have crowded my mind in trying to give or rather to seek in hereditary sources for the traits of Mrs. Breese's admirable traits of character that to keep this obituary tribute within reasonable bounds for the columns of a newspaper has proved to be a somewhat difficult, although genial and very grateful task.

An Officer Exonerated.

Mayor Franklin recently received a communication from Geo. T. Downing charging Police Officer No. 18 with neglect of duty on the 17th inst., in refusing to arrest a woman on his premises. The Mayor with his usual promptness in such cases began an investigation of the circumstances relating to the charge, and on Tuesday summoned No. 18, who is officer Griffith, to his office in the City Hall. After listening to Mr. Griffith's story, finding it agreed with facts already ascertained, he completely exonerated the officer, deciding that he had done nothing more or less than his duty.

The circumstances of the affair as shown by the investigation are that on the day mentioned officer Griffith was sent to Mr. Downing's residence in answer to a call received at police headquarters; that on arriving on the premises Mr. Downing ordered the officer to arrest a certain woman in his kitchen; that the woman was quiet at the time, and that the officer refused to do more, under the circumstances, than to see that she left the premises.

Mrs. Clarissa H., widow of the late Jeremiah Peabody, died at her residence last Tuesday after a long and painful illness. She was a most estimable lady and leaves a host of friends who will sincerely mourn her loss.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Prescott Baker were considerably bruised last Wednesday by the capsizing of their dog-cart while driving in Middletown. The accident was occasioned by the wheel coming in contact with a large stone at the roadside.

Mrs. Susan Frances, wife of Mr. Stafford Bryer, Sr., died at her residence on Mt. Vernon street Monday, in the 69th year of her age. She was a most estimable lady and leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. The funeral was solemnized from the First Baptist Church on Wednesday and was largely attended.

On Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock Rev. Dr. Thayer will deliver the annual sermon to the Artillery Company in the Armory. Last year the annual sermon was omitted owing to the illness of the Doctor, which was the first time he had failed to speak to the Company since he was appointed chaplain April 30, 1867.

The new life saving station at Price's Neck is now nearly completed and will be ready for occupancy about the 1st of October. The building which cost some seven thousand dollars, is one of the finest on the Atlantic coast. The captain and crew for this station have not yet been appointed but will be in a few days.

Mr. John B. Hall, one of Middletown's leading citizens died Thursday night after an illness of some six weeks. Mr. Hall has brought milk to Newport for nearly forty years and, with possibly one exception, was the oldest man in the service. He was a man of sterling integrity and much esteemed by all who knew him.

A top-buggy containing Mrs. Beckwith of Providence, a guest at Mrs. Wilbour's on Church street, was capsized Thursday on Thames street. Ready hands extricated the lady from her perilous position while others held the spirited horse. The accident occurred by a passing team striking and breaking the wheel of Mrs. Beckwith's carriage. The lady was unhurt, but it was a narrow escape.

A Bereaved Family.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Moffitt, who but a few days since lost their only son, William, are now called upon to mourn the loss of their daughter Miss Clara Lewis, who died on Tuesday last in the 26th year of her age. The funeral was solemnized Thursday afternoon in the presence of a large gathering of mourning friends.

Poetry.

Evening.

BY LUTHER G. RIGGS.

When the long bright hours are numbered,
And the daylight hours die;
When the stars their nightly watch-fires
Kind'le in the azure skies—
What is that which, gently stealing
Dream-like o'er the musing mind,
Claims each wayward thought and feeling
With a magic undefined?

Hark! the dash of distant waters,
Murm'ring in their ceaseless play,
Comes upon the breath of evening,
Blending with the night bird's lay.
Whence the power that strangely sways us,
As we list that mystic tune,
Bringing back sweet faded memories
With the glances of the moon?

Now the evening star arises
Brightly o'er the wooded hill,
Gilding with her mellow radiance,
Field and forest, fount and rill.
Know'st thou whence this strong emotion,
Stirring e'en the fount of tears—
Why the glance, so quick and searching,
Backward flies to childhood's years?

Is it memories of the wildwood,
Where in early life we strayed?
Or the moon-lit haunts of childhood,
Where we innocently played?
Is it name of friend or brother,
Hoarded long in memory's cell?
Or the mild glance of our mother
That awakes the mystic spell?

Deep within that spell is centered—
Yet what tongue can speak the whole?
Who reveal the hidden power
Of the strange mysterious soul?
Ever unexplained, yet present
With our spirit, dwells the power,
Potent thus to move and sway us,
In the pensive evening hour.

A Discarded Rose.

Ah, hapless rose! say who hath marred thy crown?
Who plucked those precious petals—tossed thee down
And left thee here to jostle with the world?
Still is thy radiance rare in this strange crowd
Of burly, bustling men in business whirled;
If one should crush thee, I would cry aloud
To view thy fate—thy gentle beauty flown
Beneath th' insensate blow of some unknown!
A moment—yes—I have thee, wounded rose,
Close to my heart, and safe in glad repose!
—Margaret P. Janes in The Continent.

No corner is in God's round world
Where one may hide himself away;
The winds through all its spaces search,
Through all its shadows flits the day.

A wild rose trembling o'er a brook,
In thickest dust of tangled shade,
Spied by some artist's eye may charm
The world in hues that never fade.
—Anonymous.

Is thy life-summer passing?
Think not thy joys are o'er!
Thou hast not seen what Autumn
For thee may have in store.
Calmer than breezy April,
Cooler than August blaze,
The fairest time of all may be
September's golden days.
Press on though summer waneth,
And falter not nor fear,
For God can make the Autumn
The glory of the year.

Selected Tale.

HER STONY HEART.

It was on the occasion of a meeting of the sewing circle, which was held that week at Keziah Fletcher's, that the fruitful subject of Mrs. Denton's peculiarities, was brought up for about the fortieth time. All the members, with the exception of the minister's wife, were present, and every one of them had something to say of the poor woman whose strange ways had caused her to become quite a curiosity in Brierville.

"It's my opinion such people are best left alone," said Mrs. Prudence Randall, as she bit off her thread a little spitefully.

"She's been a disgrace to the town, ever since she lived in it," said Miss Paulina Cowan. "I must confess that I haven't any patience with such queer ways."

"Poor thing! she's seen a sight of trouble," said Miss Keziah, who was ever ready to pour oil on the troubled waters. "First, her husband died of delirium tremens—"

"Worthless soul! She'd oughter have been pleased to death ter get rid o' him," interrupted Miss Mattie Baker, throwing her scissors on the table near her, with considerable noise. "You won't get no pity for her out o' that, Miss Keziah."

"Then she lost her two little girls with scarlet fever," continued Miss Keziah, unheeding the interruption, "and only a year later her second boy died of the typhoid. She'd only one child left, then, and that was her oldest boy. She set so much store by him! I remember seein' her look at him, once, as if she worshiped the very ground he trod on, and—"

"That's it," interrupted Mrs. Bliss, whose husband was one of the "pillars" in the Methodist church. "She thought more of him than she did of her salvation, and he was taken from her, that her hard heart might be softened."

"But it seems harder than ever," said Mrs. Randall. "She won't listen to words of comfort nor anything else. No one can make any impression on her. Miss Cowan here went to her and told her how we were all born to pass under the rod which chasteneth, and that her Edgar'd been called from the evil to come. What d'ye think Miss Denton did? Why, she rose up like a fury, and told Paulina she preferred to be left alone."

"Yes," giggled Miss Cowan, hysterically. "She'd rather have my room than my company, any day. Howsomever, I don't bear her no hard feelin's'. I done what I could for her."

"The minister's wife didn't get no better treatment," said Miss Baker. "She sat in Miss Denton's shanty, most an hour, talkin' of the mysterious ways of Providence, an' everything bein' for our good, an' all flesh bein' grass, an' so on. An' Miss Denton, she never spoke a word, from first to last, but lay on the sofy with her eyes shet, an' never said good-bye, when Mrs. Bounce went away. Such impertinence! An' I went there, too, I didn't want to be behind the rest of folks in doin' my duty. I told her about these afflictions bein' sent for our good, an' she must bow her neck to the yoke, and bend her back ter the burden. She laughed at me! Yes, she done just that."

"She wouldn't even see me," said Mrs. Peckham, a tall, sharp-featured woman with a shrill voice. "I saw her at the window, but she wouldn't open the door, no matter how loud I knocked, but I scattered tracts all down the front walk, and I hope they did her good."

"Miss Keziah, you ain't ben, I believe. Well, don't go; it's time wasted. Her heart's as hard as a stun."

"No," said Miss Keziah, laying down her work as she spoke, "I haven't been to see her. You know I was away to Helmstone, when her Edgar had the fever, and since I've been back, my rheumatiz has been that bad I couldn't go anywhere. But now I'm a trifle better, I'll take my turn."

"What is the use? What can you do? Have we not done everything?" chorused the other ladies.

"I think I shall ask her to tea," said Miss Keziah, thoughtfully.

"Ask her to tea!" repeated half a dozen astonished listeners.

"Yes, none of you tried that, I believe," answered Miss Keziah.

"She won't come," said Mrs. Bliss.

"Perhaps not; but all the same it won't do no harm to ask her."

"I hope you'll try to soften her heart, and bring her to the prayer meetin' Thursday night," said Miss Cowan.

Miss Keziah made no answer, but a peculiar look crossed her homely, good-natured face—a look Miss Paulina did not quite understand.

"Miss Keziah'll be wise to make no promises," said Mrs. Bliss. "It stands to reason that she won't succeed where all the rest of us have failed. One might as well talk to a stone as to talk to Mrs. Denton."

Miss Keziah sighed, and bent her eyes upon her work. She had known what suffering was, once, and she knew that, while sorrow and pain soften some natures, it hardens and embitters others.

Mrs. Denton lived entirely alone on the outskirts of the village, in a little, old, weather-beaten house she had bought when she first came to Brierville, ten years before. Weeds grew tall and rank, in the yard; the sunken steps leading to the door, were half-buried in vines; the well-curb was broken; the gate fallen to the ground; in fact, everything about the place spoke of ruin and decay.

"Not a very cheerful place, certainly," muttered Miss Keziah, as, the day following the meeting of the sewing-circle, she drove up to the Widow Denton's and hitched her horse to the tumble-down fence which partially enclosed the yard. "Now, Hetty, you sit right still, till I come back, and don't start old Moll."

Hetty was a diminutive niece of Miss Keziah's, a golden-haired, blue-eyed child of six years of age, who had been left to her aunt as the sole legacy of an only sister.

Miss Keziah walked up the grass-grown path, and knocked boldly on Mrs. Denton's door.

Before her knuckles had fairly left it, the door was flung open by Mrs. Denton herself, who stood silently regarding her visitor, with an expression of resentment and indignation.

"How d'ye do, Miss Denton. I'm Keziah Fletcher. Perhaps you've heard tell of me before. I was at Helmstone a considerable spell, an' since I got back I've been laid by with the rheumatiz, or I'd have called before. I come to see if you'd take tea to my house to-night. I'll make you comfortable, an' it'll be a sort o' change for you."

Mrs. Denton made no reply. She stood staring at her visitor as if she had not heard her words. Then her eyes wandered to the gate, and fell at last upon the spring wagon and its occupant, whose golden curls were escaped from the close calico sun-bonnet which shielded her pretty face from the noonday-sun.

"Is that your child?" she asked, abruptly, without taking her gaze from Hetty. There was a hungry, yearning look in her eye as she spoke, a tremor in her voice.

"Land sakes! No, indeed!" ejaculated Miss Keziah, with virtuous horrors in her tone. "I never was married. The only man I ever cared a straw for was drowned at sea, and those that cared for me was mostly mercenary in their views. Hetty's my sister Jane's child. Jane she died at Helmstone some six months back. Come, won't you jump in the wagon and go with me? I didn't 'low to be disapp'inted in having you to tea, so I made all ready for you."

"Yes, I'll come," said Mrs. Denton, withdrawing her gaze from Hetty who was grasping the reins with ludicrous earnestness, as if the steadiness of old Moll depended entirely upon her.

She went into the house and put on an old fashioned straw bonnet and a faded black merino shawl. Then she walked down the path and climbed into the wagon after Miss Keziah, without uttering a word.

"You forgot to lock your door," said the careful spinster, as she took the reins from Hetty's little hands.

A bitter smile curled Mrs. Denton's lips.

"I never lock it," she said; "there is nothing in the house worth stealing."

The two women jogged along the quiet road, with the child between them, Miss Keziah talking on indifferent subjects in her kind, sensible, whole hearted way. She did not allude to her visitor's sorrows, nor did she mention the visits paid to the lonely cottage by other members of the sewing circle.

A man took the horse when they reached Miss Keziah's farm, which was a mile from the centre of the town, and one of the finest in the country. It was well cultivated, well stocked with fruits of various kinds, and its buildings were all comfortable and roomy, the house itself being built of stone, in a substantial old-fashioned manner.

Miss Keziah led the way into the sitting room and helped her visitor to take off her bonnet and shawl.

"Have this easy-chair, Mrs. Denton," she said with great cordiality, "and make yourself to home. I've got to see to the supper, but I guess that Hetty can amuse you a spell. Hetty, mind you are good while I'm gone."

She left the room and was absent nearly half an hour. When she returned, Mrs. Denton had Hetty on her lap, and was telling her a fairy story. The first smile the poor woman's face had worn for nearly a year, rushed on it as she looked up, on Miss Keziah's entrance, and said:

"She reminds me so much of my little Bertha. I can't tell the good it does me to just hold her in my arms —they have been empty so long."

A deep sigh followed the words.

"I am glad she hasn't bothered you," said Miss Keziah, cheerfully. "But now come into tea, guess you're pretty nigh famished awaiting for it."

A sumptuous repast was in readiness. Boiled chickens, cold ham, light biscuit, apple, grape and pumpkin pie, doughnuts, pound cake and cookies composed the bill of fare, concluding with every variety of sweetmeat and condiment, preserves, pickles, honey and cheese. Miss Keziah could not have arranged a better feast, had she been expecting a bishop to tea, instead of a stony heart she wished to soften.

With a cordial smile the spinster motioned her guest to a seat, and, after putting Hetty in a high chair, reverently asked a blessing.

"I didn't put up as many kinds of preserves as usual this year," she observed as she helped Mrs. Denton to plum jelly. "I ain't the woman I used to be by a long way. Rheumatiz do lay holt on a body so! I'm in bed or on crutches half my time. I calkerlate I'll have to give up the farm if I don't mend. I did set on having Jane here to manage everything for me; but poor thing! the fever carried her off all to once, jest as she'd got free o' that ornary husband o' hers. I'd hate to give it up, though. Jane and me was both born here, and I've never know'd no other home."

When supper was over the two women walked about the yard, made a tour of the garden, and admired the cows as they came leisurely up to the barnyard to be milked. Then Mrs. Denton remarked that it was growing late, and she must hurry home.

"What's the need of your going?" asked Miss Keziah. "I've got four spare rooms, and would be glad if they were all full. Suppose you stay all night?"

Mrs. Denton hesitated. She thought of her lonely, neglected house, peopled with ghosts of her dead children, and contrasted it with this bright, home-like place, where the child's sweet voice made music.

"Do stay," said little Hetty, clinging to the visitor's dress.

This decided the poor broken hearted woman.

"I will, and thank you for asking me, Miss Keziah. I have not deserved such kindness."

That night after Hetty had gone to bed, the two women sat and talked in the large sitting-room, which an open fire made cheerful and bright. Gradually Mrs. Denton was led to speak of her children, all now resting in their narrow graves in the village cemetery. She spoke of their uniform goodness and love for herself, but said little of her grief at losing them. Her voice sounded harsh and strange to Miss Keziah, who understood the effort for control the woman was making.

"Poor soul, you've seen a sight of trouble, I know," the spinster said, softly, and she put her hands tenderly on those of her guest, which were clasped hard together.

There was a deep silence for a few moments, unbroken save by the ticking of the eight-day clock in the corner. Then suddenly Mrs. Denton threw herself at Miss Keziah's feet, and broke into bitter weeping. Hoarse sobs tore their way from her breast, and her frame shook with the violence of her emotion. The restraint, the self-control of years, was broken down. The heart burdened for so long, found relief at last in passionate sobs and cries.

Miss Keziah said nothing, but tenderly stroked away from the hot forehead the thick hair, grown gray with sorrow. There was sympathy in every touch.

"You are so different from the rest;" said Mrs. Denton, when at last she had grown calm enough to speak. "The others who have come to me have driven me nearly mad with their unmeaning advice. Not one of them knew what I suffered, not one could understand my grief. When my boy, my Edgar, the last of all my children, was ill, no one came near me—he disease was contagious, they said. I nursed him alone. Alone I saw him die, followed him alone to his grave. Could I believe their words of sympathy after that? Ah, Miss Keziah, words can give you no idea of all that I suffered. One by one every joy of my life has left me. One by one my children were taken from me until only Edgar was left. How I loved him. How I depended upon him to atone for all I had suffered. How I dreamed over him. Idle dreams, foreshadowing happiness that was never to be mine. Then he was taken, and I was left to sink into despair. I only wanted to die, to join the dear ones, where no sorrow could ever touch me again. My heart yearned for sympathy. I would have welcomed it. But those that came to me came because they thought it their duty, not from love or kindness. Not one of them asked me to her home, or tried to make me forget my sorrows in other things. No, they reminded me of them, and preached patience and resignation."

"They acted according to their lights," said charitable Miss Keziah. "They have led easy, pleasant lives, and did not know how to deal with a sorrow such as yours."

"But you know," said Mrs. Denton, in a low voice.

"Yes," answered Miss Keziah, "I know, because I have suffered, too."

They sat talking by the fire until nearly midnight, and then retired to rest. Mrs. Denton for the first time since Edgar's death, offered up a silent, but earnest prayer before she fell asleep. Her heart was no longer hardened.

She did not go back to her cottage the next morning as she had expected, for Miss Keziah's rheumatism had been increased by her late walk of the previous evening, and she was unable to leave her bed. For many days she was utterly helpless, and during that time was tenderly nursed by Mrs. Denton, who also made herself generally useful in the house, and directed the work of the farm with care and decision. When Miss Keziah got well she was so much pleased with the way things had been managed during her enforced idleness, that she made a proposition to Mrs. Denton.

"Suppose you take the place of my sister Jane," she said, "and stay right along with me. I need somebody as you see; and what's the use of both of us living lonely when we can be company for each other as well as not? You'd take a deal of comfort in Hetty, too. I believe you love her now 'most as well as I do."

"She seems to me like my own little Bertha come back to me," said Mrs. Denton. "But, O, Miss Keziah, I ought not to accept your kindness. I have been so hard, so wicked, so rebellious, I do not deserve that such good should come to me."

"We differ about that; but we wont argue it," said Miss Keziah. "I want you, and you'd like to stay; so the thing's settled. You're my partner from this day on."

The next Sunday the good people of Brierville were surprised to see Mrs. Denton in Miss Keziah's pew at church, and attendance at prayers in the evening.

"How did you manage it?" asked Mrs. Bliss, as she stopped Miss Keziah in the vestibule of the church.

"Oh, I asked her to tea, as I said I was going to," answered Miss Keziah, "and I guess the preservee kinder softened and sweetened her up," and she passed on to where Mrs. Denton stood waiting to help her into the spring wagon.

Neither Mrs. Denton nor Miss Keziah ever regretted entering into that partnership. As the years went on Miss Keziah often wondered how she should ever have managed the farm without the help of the capable, energetic woman who had taken the place of Sister Jane.

Mrs. Denton was never weary working for the comfort and prosperity of the friend who had come to her in her hour of need, and let her out of the slough of despond. And happiness made her a different woman. She learned at last those lessons of patience and resignation which had seemed so hard and bitter in the first days of her sorrow. Despair, rebellion and repining gave place in her heart to hope and tenderness. She grew at last to have only tender, gentle memories of the loved ones who had left her, and she proved a kind, judicious guardian to little Hetty, when warm-hearted Miss Keziah had passed away from earth.

What are the most unsociable things in the world? Milestones. You never see two of them together.

Polishing the Wrong End.

Many men daily polish their boots who never give a thought to the condition of their hair except to harrow it casually with the comb and brush, or submit it to the paralyzing attentions of the average barber. What happens? Why, this: From neglect, mental anxiety, or any of a score of causes, the hair turns prematurely gray and begins to fall out. Parker's Hair Balsam will at once stop the latter process and restore the original color. An elegant dressing, free from grease.

Physiognomy of the Mouth.

The shape of the mouth is not only a guide to permanent traits, but it also assists in revealing temporary emotions. Mouths which turn down at the corners show a melancholy tendency; this is temporary, induced by continued brooding over trouble. Mouths whose corners turn upwards, disclose mirthful, fun-loving characters. Mouths which form in the upper lip the appearance called "Cupid's bow," belong to those who possess true domestic sentiments—that is to say, love the opposite sex, love of young, and (incidentally) of animals. This appearance is observed in all well-developed characters. A thin, pale upper lip is indicative of the reverse of this, and reveals a snappish, shrewish disposition, with a dislike of the opposite sex, as well as of children and animals. Full lips disclose social and linguistic abilities. Many persons have the idea that thick, full lips belong to coarse, gross characters.—If found in the undeveloped race, this is correct; but where the skin is fine, then this development is illustrative of the greatest sociality, sympathy and domesticity.

The fullness of the under lip is a sign of generosity, sympathy and benevolence. A thin, pale, bloodless under lip belongs to a cruel, unsympathetic or impoverished character.—Fullness of the underlip is the facial sign of the glandual system which contributes to creating and supplying the body with its juices, warmth and blood. Hence, it is easy to understand how one endowed with an abundance of nourishing fluids is better able to warm towards others, and to have the strength and desire to love and protect them, than one who is really impoverished and cold in his own person. We can give only what we possess. The faces of celebrated misers are filled with firm wrinkles, showing their bloodless, juiceless condition and their unsympathetic natures. They are never prolific, and this is yet another indication of their barren natures; for where the glands of the body are normal we find the procreative function most active, and the face full and well colored.—Argonaut.

The Great English Beer Manufacturer.

The death of Mr. M. T. Bass, the great Burton brewer, has given to the world a few particulars of the immense business of the firm of which he was the head. The business was founded in 1778, by Mr. William Base, and for about fifty years the firm confined their trade in bitter beer to India. In 1827 they began to open up a trade in England, but it was not until the year 1851, during the time of the great exhibition, that "Bass" acquired a metropolitan fame. In three days the firm now do as much business as they did in the course of a year, some half a century ago.

For the year ending June 30, 1878, the firm paid to railway and canal companies, and other carriers for carriage alone, the sum of $900,510. Their ale stores near St. Pancras Station cover three floors, each two acres in extent, and each containing 30,000 barrels of thirty-six gallons of ale. The breweries at Burton are enormous, and the staff there is said to be 3000. The average annual amount of the business is estimated at $12,000,000.

In malt tax and license duty, Bass & Company pay $1,430,000 per annum, so that their contribution toward the twenty-eight millions sterling derived from the liquor traffic is $3800 per day. The total number of butts, hogsheads, barrels and kilderkins necessary to carry on this business is 543,859, which, if laid end to end, would more than cover the distance between London and Manchester.

Mozart, who wanted bread, gets a stone. Vienna is building him a monument to cost $50,000, which is much more than he received for the whole work of his life. He died in want, and his uncoffined corpse was thrust into a trench in the potter's field.

"Fin by the hired hand whose clothes are patched in front rather than behind," is a current farm note.

PROBABLY NEVER

In the history of proprietary medicines has any article met success at home equal to that which has been poured upon Hood's Sarsaparilla. Why, such has been the success of this article, that nearly every family in whole neighborhoods have been taking it at the same time. Every week brings new evidence of the wonderful curative properties of this medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Combines the BEST Remedies of the vegetable kingdom, and in such proportion as to derive their greatest medicinal effects with the least disturbance to the whole system. In fact this preparation is so well balanced in its action upon the alimentary canal, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the bowels and the circulation of the blood, that it brings about a healthy action of the entire human organism, that can hardly be credited by those who have not seen the remarkable results that have followed its use. If the Sarsaparilla does not prove sufficiently laxative, take a few doses of Hood's VEGETABLE PILLS. It is well in all cases of biliousness to take these pills in connection with the Sarsaparilla, for the first ten days. That dull, sleepy, sick feeling can be wholly overcome by the use of these remedies. Will you give them a trial and be yourself again?

An ex-alderman of this city says of Hood's Sarsaparilla, "It is the strongest Sarsaparilla I ever saw."

Each dollar bottle contains one hundred (average) doses. Sold by all druggists.

Price one dollar, or six for five dollars. Hood's Sarsaparilla, prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

"Kidney-Wort is the most successful remedy I ever used." Dr. P. C. Ballou, Monkton, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort is always reliable." Dr. R. N. Clark, Sa. Drew, Vt.

"Kidney-Wort has cured my wife after two years suffering." Dr. C. M. Summerlin, Sun Hill, Ga.

IN THOUSANDS OF CASES

it has cured where all else had failed. It is mild, but efficient, CERTAIN IN ITS ACTION, but harmless in all cases.

☞ It cleanses the Blood and Strengthens and gives New Life to all the important organs of the body. The natural action of the Kidneys is restored. The Liver is cleansed of all disease, and the Bowels move freely and healthfully. In this way the worst diseases are eradicated from the system. 2

SPEER'S

PORTUGAL GRAPE WINE.

Also

UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Used in the principal Churches for Communion. Excellent for Females, Weakly Persons and the aged.

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE.

FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards. Its invaluable.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness, are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child may partake of it, and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.—Is the juice of the Oporto Grapes preserved in its natural, fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Burgundy.—Is a dark rich medium Dry Wine used by the wealthy classes as a Table or Dinner Wine, and by physicians in cases where a dry wine instead of a sweet port is desired.

Speer's (socialite) Claret.—Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.—Is a Wine of Superior Character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.—IS A PURE distillation from the grape, and stands unrivalled in this Country for medicinal purposes.

It has peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

Sold by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., and CASWELL, MASSEY & Co., and by Druggists every where.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

QUARTERLY REVIEW.

TIME, B. C. 1048 to 1020.

At the end of last year we closed our lessons with the death of Saul and Jonathan in a battle with the Philistines at Gilboa. This battle left Israel in a sad state. The country was overrun by the Philistines who occupied the cities from which the inhabitants had fled. The remaining members of Sauls family fled to the east side of Jordan, while David, at God's command, went, with his family and friend, from Ziklag, where he first heard of Sauls death, to Hebron, the ancient sacred city of the tribe of Judah. Here the men of Judah came to him and anointed him king over their tribe. He reigned in Hebron seven and one-half years. Meanwhile, Abner, the captain of the Israelitish army, proclaimed Ish-bosheth, the eldest living son of Saul, king over all Israel. He reigned but two years, which was spent in a war with Judah. His army was defeated at the Pool of Gibeon. Abner left him and went over to David, but was slain by Joab, David's captain, and Ish-bosheth himself was slain by two of his own captains. They intended to proclaim as king, Mephibosheth, a crippled son of Jonathan, and the only surviving male member of Saul's family. At this crisis in affairs, David was chosen king over all Israel, as the only one who could unite the nation.

David was then thirty-seven years old, and reigned over the reunited nation thirty three years, making, in all, a reign of forty years. It seemed desirable for several, reasons, that his capital should be removed to a locality somewhat more central than Hebron. The strongly fortified and easily defeated hill of Jebus, just on the boundary between the territories of Judah and Benjamin, had never been taken from its old Canaanitish possessors. To capture that place, and establish there his national headquarters was David's first work. In that enterprise he was quickly and completely successful. It was a brilliant opening of the new administration. Soon after he was established in his new capital, David fought several successful campaigns against the Philistines. Peace being established in all his borders, he turned his attention to the reestablishment of the formal worship of God. The sacred Ark, once captured by the Philistines and sent back by them, was carried to Jerusalem. The Ark was kept in a perishable tent or tabernacle. He resolved to build for it a permanent and magnificent temple, which should be an acknowledgement of his indebtedness to Jehovah, and a place of worship comparing in beauty and splendor with the dignity, purity and holiness of him for whose worship it was built. It was afterwards revealed to him that because he had been a man of war, and had shed much blood, it would be more pleasing to God that his son, who would succeed him upon the throne, should build the temple. David humbly accepted the divine decision, and diligently went forward in making preparations for the work.

In his prosperity, David did not forget Jonathan, the friend of his early manhood. He found a son of Jonathan himself, and upon him conferred great honor, fully redeeming the pledge made to his father when he had stood between him and the angry Saul. Although a king and greatly blessed of God, David did not escape trouble. His oldest son was killed by Absolom, one of his best loved sons, in revenge for a great wrong done by him. Absolom fled to his grandfather, the king of Geshur, but was finally recalled to Jerusalem, and after two years the king became reconciled and received him again into his presence. But Absolom, though now the apparent heir to the throne, was ambitious, and began to plot for the overthrow of his fathers authority. He succeeded in raising a powerful insurrection, and in getting himself proclaimed king at Hebron. David fled from Jerusalem, was pursued by Absolom, and finally sent out his army, under skillful captains, to fight against his own son.

He charged his captains to "deal gently with the young man," for his sake, but in the midst of the battle, Absalom was caught by the head in the branches of a tree under which he attempted to ride, and while held there, unable to defend himself, was killed by David's chief captain.

When David heard the news of Absaloms death he was overwhelmed with grief, and gave expression to his sorrow in most tender and passionate exclamations, forming, as given in our English Version, one of the most pathetic and beautiful passages in our literature.

In the course of time, David seems to have forgotten his dependence upon God, and to have become proud by reason of his great power and prosperity. For some wrong purpose, not made known to us, he ordered a census of the people to be taken. It was contrary to the will of God, and the nation had become involved with him in the sin, and it became necessary for Jehovah to inflict upon the king and his people a severe punishment. A severe pestilence fell upon the nation, by which seventy thousand died in a very short time. God arrested the plague before the expiration of the time appointed for its continuance, and David, by direction of the prophet God, went up to Mt. Moriah to offer sacrifice upon the threshing floor of Araunah, a Jebusite man of consequence.

We have studied, during this quarter, five of the psalms believed to have been written by David. They are among the most beautiful of the sacred lyrics. In them is revealed much of the spiritual experience and true character of their gifted and wonderful author.

How Tommie Had His Tooth Pulled.

BY E. ADDIE HEATH.

The first thing when Tommie Lawson came down stairs the other morning, he declared that he had passed a miserable night, at which Aunt Cora laughed and asked him if he had been "full of fearful dreams and ugly sights."

Tommie took offence at this.

"Isn't it bad enough to lie awake all night long with the toothache, 'thout having you hector me like that in the morning?" demanded he.

"All night!" there was a tone of pity in Aunt Cora's voice.

"Not a wink have I slept," returned Tommy, putting his hand to his face, and wrinkling his nose and winking his eyes as newer twinges of pain darted through every tooth in his poor little head.

Aunt Cora truly pitied him. She was two and a half years older than her nephew, and knew Shakespeare a little, you see, from hearing her brother Norman drill his class in elocution. She liked Richard the Second, Act IV., better than anything else she had heard them read, and so quoted from it to answer Tommie.

"It's too bad, I declare," and her hand went toward the swollen, poulticed face, sympathetically.

"Ugh! I wouldn't let you touch me for five dollars, Aunt Co—no, nor ten, either," exclaimed Tommy, retreating, and he shook his head as well as he could to verify it.

"So sore as that!" cried the terrified aunt, giving him a sympathizing little pat on his arm instead. "How sorry I am."

"So am I," agreed Tommy, feigning a smile. "A good deal sorrier than you are, I bet, Aunt Co, 'cause I wanted to beat at ball to-day."

"There ought to be some cure for it, I sh'd think. Just let me look at it!" coaxed Aunt Co.

"There isn't," groaned Tommy' opening wide his mouth. "I've tried everything."

"Let me see," commanded Aunt Co, standing on tiptoe, and peering into his mouth, "let me see. Why, Tommy Lawson," were her first words, it's just as loose as can be. Why don't you have it pulled?"

"Oh-h-h-! oh-h-h-h!" exclaimed Tommy taking a firm hold on his face.

"It is, Tommy Lawson. The littlest, te-e-eniest thread in the world holds it there."

"Oh-h—" screamed Tommy. Don't you put your finger on that tooth, Aunt Co Sampson. Don't you, I say, as he withdrew, the aunt closely following.

"See here, Tommy!" she continued, after he had walked backward to the farther end of the room, and tucked himself into the nearest corner. "See here," she went on, confronting him boldly. "I'm your aunt, you know, and older than you are, too, considerably," wisely shaking her head, "Now listen! I can cure that toothache."

"O, Aunt Co!" was Tommy's cheerful answer, still holding tight his face.

"I can, truly, if you'll let me put this around it," showing him a piece of fine linen thread she had taken from the table in their walk across the room.

Let me wind this 'round it, and it will come into place again."

"O, Aunt Co," he repeated, opening wide the poor little mouth. So in and out among the shining white bits adorning her nephew's mouth, the aunt wound the flaxen cord, taking great pains with the last hitch. Then jerk! went the flying ends, and 'out came string, hitch, tooth and all!

"Oh-h-h-! oh-h-h-!" roared Tommy; "oh-oh-h-! oh-h-h-h-h-h-! louder than ever falling face downward on the floor.

"You've killed me now, Aunt Co—you've killed me," he shrieked.

"I haven't," contradicted Aunt Co.

"And more than that," he declared, springing to his feet, instantly forgetting pain and fright, "you've told me a falsehood—an out and out falsehood, Aunt Co."

"I have not, Tommy Sampson," again contradicted Aunt Co.

"Why?" returned the injured aunt, putting her little foot down with an air of great determination—for Aunt Co was the most loyal little body—"because I haven't, that's all."

"O, Aunt Co, you know better," and Tommy grew very red in the face. "You know that tooth will never grow into place again, as well as not—you've deceived me, that's all."

Oh, how bright Aunt Co's eyes were.

"I say I have not, Tommy Sampson," and the little feet sank deeper yet into the velvet carpet. "It is true—every word I said. You'll have a new one there—a bran new one."

"Oh!" interrupted Tommy.

"And 'sides, I said all I could, the other day, when it first commenced aching, and you wouldn't go to the dentist's, you know I did, and what can you do with a boy that hasn't courage enough to have a tooth pulled when it aches, I should like to know."

So should I!—Portland Transcript.

SALT RHEUM

And Every Species of Itching and Burning Diseases Positively Cured.

ECZEMA, or Salt Rheum, with its agonizing itching and burning, instantly relieved by a warm bath with CUTICURA SOAP, and a single application of CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure. This repeated daily, with two or three doses of Cuticura Resolvent, the New Blood Purifier, to keep the blood cool, the perspiration pure and unirritating, the bowels open, the liver and kidneys active, will speedily cure Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Psoriasis, Lichen, Pruritus, Scalled Head, Dandruff, and every species of Itching, Scaly, and Pimply Humors of the Scalp and Skin, when the best physicians and all known remedies fail.

Will McDonald, 2542 Dearborn St., Chicago, gratefully acknowledges a cure of Salt Rheum on head, neck, face, arms, and legs for seventeen years; not able to walk except on hands and knees for one year; not able to help himself for eight years; tried hundreds of remedies; doctors pronounced his case hopeless; permanently cured by Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the great skin cures) externally.

Chas. Houghton, Esq., lawyer, 28 State St., Boston, reports a case of Salt Rheum under his observation for ten years, which covered the patient's body and limbs, and to which all known methods of treatment had been applied without benefit, which was completely cured solely by the Cuticura Remedies, leaving a clean and healthy skin.

F. H. Drake, Esq., Detroit, Mich., suffered untold tortures from Salt Rheum, which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. After the most careful doctoring and a consultation of physicians failed to relieve him, he used the Cuticura Remedies, and was cured and has remained so to date.

Mr. John Thiel, Wilkesbarre, Pa., writes:—I have suffered from Salt Rheum for over eight years, at times so bad that I could not attend to my business for weeks at a time. Three boxes of Cuticura, and four bottles Resolvent, have entirely cured me of this dreadful disease.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would now have been in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1884.

President Arthur does not propose to return to Washington till the first of October.

The New York Sun after investigation in New York styles the Independents the tadpole party—all head and no following.

England paid this country fifteen and one half millions of dollars. Of this ten million have been awarded to claimants leaving five and one half millions for the government.

Every Democratic member of Congress for Louisiana who voted for Morrison's free trade bill last session has been defeated for re-election. Free trade has no foothold in Louisiana.

The cholera is still raging in Italy. The latest report gives 441 cases and 203 deaths. Of these 264 cases and 75 deaths were in the city of Naples, which shows an increase of deaths in that city.

The Butler party in Massachusetts held an enthusiastic State Convention in Worcester Wednesday and put in nomination a full State ticket. The Butler party enters into the campaign with great enthusiasm.

The President has appointed Postmaster Gresham to be Secretary of the Treasury in place of Secretary Folger, deceased. It is expected that Assistant Postmaster Hatton will be promoted to Postmaster General.

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U., will be held in Pawtucket, Sept. 30th and Oct. 1 and 2. Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, Hannah Whitall Smith and other distinguished speakers will address the meeting.

When Grover Cleveland charged for 863 days' work as Sheriff in one year, he showed a disposition to look out for number one. He probably concluded that the opportunity would not last long and he would make the most of it while it did last.

The Republicans of Pawtucket had a rousing meeting on Wednesday evening. Speeches were made by many prominent citizens and there was much enthusiasm. The Hon. William F. Sayles was elected president of the Blaine & Logan Club.

Mr. Blaine is having a most enthusiastic reception in New York and Pennsylvania. Hundreds of thousands of people turn out to greet him and the most unbounded enthusiasm prevails. Gen Logan is likewise receiving great ovations in Ohio and West Virginia. The Republican candidates do not fear to show themselves.

We venture the assertion that not one in fifty of our independent or prohibition friends, who talk so glibly about Blaine's corruption, knows or can tell one thing he ever did or attempted to do. All they know or think they know on the subject they have taken from the garbled statements contained in the Daily News columns. Now we would advise our friends not to pin their faith to the campaign misstatements therein contained but read both sides. Read fairly and candidly and judge for yourselves.

Judge Noah Davis of New York, in a recent speech, said: "I have now for thirty years occupied, with slight intermissions, a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court, and have had a long experience in examining and determining cases involving the most careful investigation and weighing of evidence. I affirm—having given careful attention to all those Mulligan letters—that there is not in them a particle of evidence that should impugn in the minds of the American people the honesty, integrity and fitness of James G. Blaine for the Presidency of the United States."

One of our prominent citizens, at the prohibition caucus Monday night, said that he could not vote for Blaine with his record, neither could he vote for Cleveland, so he should vote for St. John, and thus help throw the election into the House. Does he know who would be elected if this were done. We will tell him. It will be one of the two men he could not vote for and that one is Cleveland, who if the election comes to the House of Representatives will receive 22 votes and Blaine will receive 15. Does he also know that in the State of Rhode Island where Blaine electors are sure to be chosen his vote and the vote of all his party is simply thrown away? It will neither help throw the election into the House nor help St John one iota towards an election. He might just as well not vote at all as vote for St. John.

"I have known the man"—says Senator Hoar—"I have been in the same room with him in the House of Representatives for eight years, and in the Senate for two years longer. I believe that the people of Maine, when, by a majority of 20,000 the other day, they pronounced their verdict, knew the man. I believe that James A. Garfield, who had been his companion in public service ever since, at the same time, he entered it, and made him Secretary of State, knew the man. I believe that the Governor of Maine, who made him Senator, and the Legislature of Maine, which afterwards elected him to the office, and the people of the Augusta district, knew the man. I believe that the Senate of the United States, of which for two years he has been a member, being exactly one-half Democrats, when, without a hesitating voice, it instantly confirmed him for the first executive office in this country, know the man, and I think if any verdict can amount to an acquittal, these repeated verdicts should amount to an acquittal on these charges."

A Vote for St. John Means What?

What do our prohibition friends expect to accomplish by voting for St. John? It is a fact well known to every one that the vast majority of all the prohibitionists come from the Republican party. Every vote taken from that party and given to St John or any other side candidate is equivalent to a vote for Cleveland and the Democratic ticket. It requires a plurality of votes in each State to choose the electors from that State for any presidential candidate. Now every vote taken from the Republican party brings the Democratic ticket that much nearer a plurality of all the votes in that State.

A vote for St John as far as practical results for that ticket are concerned, is simply thrown away. The friends of temperance cannot expect to elect the prohibition candidates. The most they can hope to do is to defeat the election and throw it into the House of Representatives. They cannot do that unless they can succeed in carrying some State or States for St John or Butler. For unless they can get more votes for their candidate than any other candidate receives they cannot choose electors favorable to their ticket. We do not think that there is any friend of the cause who will claim any State where their vote will outnumber that of either of the two great political parties. Therefore St John cannot get a single vote in the electoral college. But every vote cast for him is weakening the Republican strength and that must assist the Democratic candidate to a plurality of votes in close States.

There are certain States, like Iowa for instance, in which the Democrats, Greenbackers, Butler men and all the elements opposed to the Republican party have pooled their issues and made up an electoral ticket composed of equal numbers from each of the opposing parties. Now if by reason of the temperance vote reducing the strength of the Republican party, this mongrel ticket should be elected the election of a President by the people might be defeated. In that case while the St. John men would have contributed materially to the result they could in no way share in the victory, for unless he has succeeded in carrying some State he cannot be a candidate before the House of Representatives.

Supposing by any means the people fail to elect a President and the election goes to the House of Representatives what will be the result? The present house is the one that will choose the President. Each state has one vote and only those candidates that have received some electoral votes can be voted for. The majority of the representatives for each State determines how that vote shall be cast. In this House of Representatives there are twenty-two States the majority of whose Representatives are Democrats, fifteen with Republican majorities and one, Florida, equally divided, so it will be readily seen who will be elected if the choice is left with the House of Representatives. If by the aid of prohibition votes the Democratic ticket is successful either at the polls or in the House of Representatives what will our prohibition friends gain by the result. Is the Democratic party any more favorable to prohibition than the Republican? On the contrary is not the Democratic party opposed in every manner and in every way to any restriction upon the sale of intoxicating liquors. Does not their platform declare against all sumptuary laws and by "sumptuary laws" does it not refer simply and solely to the prohibitory liquor laws? They make no secret of this matter but openly declare their position on the question. On the other hand has not every restriction that has been made to the traffic in intoxicating liquors been made by Republican administrations? We submit that there is not a single instance on record where this has not been the case. We would therefore ask our prohibition friends what will you gain if you succeed in defeating the only party that has ever aided the cause of temperance and place in power the avowed opponents of your cause, the open advocates of free rum?

The prohibition party of this State met in convention in Providence Thursday and nominated an electoral ticket and also representatives to Congress from each district. The towns in Newport county represented were Newport, Middletown and Jamestown. Sidney Dean of Warren was chosen chairman. The electors are Michael Butler of Newport, Henry A. Wood of Providence, Rev. A. D. Vose of Woonsocket and Anson Greene of Exeter. The convention adopted a lengthy platform arraigning both political parties and declaring their adherence to St. John. In the district conventions, William P. Buffum of Middletown was nominated for Congress in this district and A. B. Chadsey of Wickford in the second district.

General Thomas Ewing of Ohio is a Democrat who went into Mr. Blaine's district in 1868 to make speeches against him. In turn Mr. Blaine stumped Ohio when Ewing was the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1879. Speaking of Mr. Blaine a few days since, General Ewing said:

"He is my kinsman and my intimate friend. In every private relation of life, as son, husband, father, friend—I know no kinder, purer or better man; and among our public men he stands unsurpassed as an embodiment of the spirit and genius of the American people. I don't believe if every letter he ever wrote and every word he ever uttered were published to the world that they would fasten on him a single act or thought of official corruption. If a man be true in all private relations, as from his boyhood I have known him to be, he is not likely to be false to the people."

There are other elections to come, and Senator Bayard is a remarkable healthy man. If the Democratic party will but get rid of some of its superfluous fools, he may be President yet.—Catholic Examiner.

Mr. Blaine Exhonerated.

Gov. Robinson of Massachusetts, whom all who know him, must admit to be an honest man as well as an intelligent man—a man capable of reading clearly and of judging evidence as candidly and fairly as any man living, speaking of Mr. Blaine and the celebrated Mulligan letters says:

What was charged against Mr. Blaine at the outset in that matter? This that he used his public position for private and personal gain. Now if he did he deserves our condemnation; if he did not, then of course we have no right to put him under suspicion after we have had an opportunity for investigation. Do these letters do anything to support that charge? I fail to find it. These letters, on the contrary, show that Mr. Blaine found himself in an unfortunate position. He had attempted to speculate and had not succeeded. What does he say to these men to whom he was writing? "I am only an innocent party in this transaction." Of course, you say he would say that to men outside, but it is to these two men. The charge is that he was in connivance with them. If he was, they knew it, and if they knew it and he knew it, do you think he is so lacking in sense that he would write them that he was an innocent party in the enterprise? This is not the way men do who set out by connivance and fraud to overreach others. In the next place, you will find a letter, the last one in the series of which the statement is made that he wished Mr. Fisher to sign what was false from beginning to end. That is a serious charge. There are circumstances, it is claimed, that sustain that assertion. But look again. In the very letter which he sends inclosing the one for signature he writes to the man who knew just as well as he did all about it (and he did not write for publication either, bear that in mind. There was "private" at the top of it and "burn it up" at the bottom); "these statements are true and honorable alike to you and me, and will stop the mouth of slander." I have yet to find or see any explanation of that language, written, it is claimed, by a man who knew he was a rascal to another who was a rascal, which will bear out that claim.

Political Clippings.

The Democratic papers do not, after all, abuse Blaine any more viciously than they did Garfield. They do not claim any more Republican desertions from Blaine than they did from Grant when Greeley was their candidate. Yet, if our memory is to be trusted, both Grant and Garfield were elected.—Buffalo Express.

The statement which Mr. Blaine makes in his letter to Mr. William Walter Phelps should close all lips upon a subject which has been introduced and discussed in this campaign only where manliness was forgotten.—New York Times (dem.)

We are not sure that the production of the supplementary batch of Mulligan letters is not an anti-climax, and damaging to the effect on the popular mind of the original lot.—Boston Transcript.

"You ought to vote our ticket," said a Mugwump to a distinguished clergyman. "What is your ticket?" was the inquiry. "Why—why—well our ticket is—well, Cleveland heads our ticket," was the reply. "But that's the Democratic ticket my young friend," retorted the clergyman. "Yes, that's so but—but—" "I've heard of a church without a Bishop, a state without a King, but I never heard of a party without a candidate," was the closing remark of the clergyman.

Mr. L'Hommedieu, a Baptist clergyman of New York city, expresses the belief that, if half the time spent in getting up church fairs and bazaars were devoted to secret prayer, church-membership would be greatly increased and pastors prosper. Without expressing an opinion on the theological part of this view, it is safe to say that a great deal of the work of the church is misdirected. Social pleasures are disguised in the form of charitable undertakings. A "good time," and very few dollars for charity are the usual result.

This is a good fruit season. The apple crop in Ohio, Michigan, New York and the Eastern States generally, promises to be so abundant that dealers in Buffalo, according to the Commercial, expect to buy good winter apples for $1.25 a barrel. We chronicle the fact, in order that dealers in Newport may take advantage of the market and not charge their patrons $4 or $5 per barrel the next winter.

The Attorney-General of New Jersey decides that an officer of a national bank is not an officer of the United States in a sense to render him ineligible to serve as a Presidential Elector. The question arose on two of the Democratic Electoral candidates in that State, one of whom is the president and the other the cashier of a national bank.

New York is now very much excited over the mayoralty. John Kelly and his followers, it is said, have determined to go it alone and will put a candidate in the field without regard to what others may do. That being the case there will probably be three candidates in the field.

The Republicans of Bristol are making things lively. They have organized a Blaine & Logan Battalion with which nearly every prominent man of the town is connected. They have had several mass meetings and the enthusiasm is increasing constantly.

A circular just issued by the Bartholdi committee says that unless $125,000 is immediately forthcoming, work on the pedestal must stop within thirty days.

An order for half a million pounds of compressed beef has been given to a Chicago firm, making a total of 740,000 pounds ordered for the Nile relief expedition.

The Cleveland Herald thinks the discussion as to whether Cleveland is a free trader or not is wasted, as he has in no speech of his or in no letter or public declaration given any evidence that he knows whether "tariff" is a new kind of chewing gum or a long-necked clam.

President Arthur will make his last winter in the White House a gay one. The Washington season promises to be brilliant, and altogether the present administration is likely to end in a blaze of social glory.

Dr. Doremus on Ammonia in Food.

In analyzing samples of baking powder purchased by myself of a number of grocers in New York City, I find that CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER contains only pure Grape Cream of Tartar, Bicarbonate of Soda and a small portion of flour, while the Royal Baking Powder contains in addition thereto, Tartaric Acid and Ammonia. The Ammonia gas is observed not only in the Royal Baking Powder when it is heated, but even in biscuits made therefrom.

My examination shows that Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder is better than the Royal Baking Powder, because:

1st. It is compounded of better and more wholesome ingredients.

2d. It yields a larger amount of Carbonic Acid Gas and in a more satisfactory manner, in consequence of which less powder is required to produce light bread material.

3d. It is honestly sold as to weight. The Cleveland cans contained full net weight, while the Royal cans were shortweight.

STOP THAT COUGH.

By using Dr. Frazier's Throat and Lung Balsam—the only sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness and Sore Throat, and all diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not neglect a Cough.—It may prove fatal. Scores and hundreds of grateful people owe their lives to Dr. Frazier's Throat and Lung Balsam, and no family will ever be without it, after once using it, and discovering its marvelous power. It is put up in large family bottles and sold for the small price of 75 cents per bottle.

FRAZIER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram shop beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the Liver and Kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves, and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity. Sold by all druggists. $1.00.

What Is It Good For?

Let us tell you what Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is good for. It is death to rheumatism and neuralgia. It will cure a burn, bite, or pain, and is equally good for sprains.

The first cyclone happened in Eden. It was a perfect hurry-Cain.

It Is Foolish

To send for the doctor every time you don't feel just right. My doctor's bill for years was over a hundred dollars a year, which made a pretty big hole in my wages. For the past two years, I only spent ten dollars, with which I bought a dozen bottles of Sulphur Bitters, and health has been in my family since using them.—Robert Johnson, Machinist.

The Dead Line.

Is well remembered by the veterans of our late war. But Spent's wine has achieved a wide reputation from its efficacy in the sick room, being one of the most pleasing and comforting beverages that can be given an invalid and at the same time is a powerful strength restorer. For sale by Caswell, Hazard & Co. and Caswell, Massey & Co.

A jeweler's advice—Watch your off-spring.

"No, indeed!" exclaimed Mrs. Podsnap energetically, "I don't believe in the extension of woman's suffrage at all—she suffers enough now."

Mr. Dennis O'Keefe, Raymond, Iowa, says his wife suffered from rheumatism for over four years, and having bought her a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-reliever, which she used, she was completely cured.

TINDER WOOD.

A SUPERIOR KIND OF

Dried Kindling.

Being KILN DRIED, contains no water, about half the quantity, as compared with pine wood, is sufficient to kindle a fire. TINDER WOOD is easily lighted, burns freely, with less smoke and a cleaner flame than undried wood, and, being made from OAK WOOD, it leaves a lasting bed of coals. It is cut three inches long and split before being kiln dried and is in the best form for economical use in kindling all sizes of coal. When used with care and skill 1 lb. will kindle the fire of any ordinary small stove or range, 1½ to 3 lbs. per square foot of grate surface is all that can be used without wasting it, and when thus used it costs about one-third less than pine wood for an equal duty.

This wood is for sale in sacks of 50 lbs. each at 50 cts per sack by

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

From all Parts of the World.

Disastrous Collision.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 22.—Two freight trains on the Hannibal and St. Joseph road collided near New Cambria, Mo., this morning. The trains were wrecked, and three men, including the engineer of the west bound train, killed, and the conductor of the west bound train and one other person fatally injured.

Prominent Lawyer Shot.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 22—Charles F. Nolan, a prominent lawyer of this city, was assaulted to-day by Samuel Odell, proprietor of the Odell Hotel. Nolan drew a revolver and discharged four shots into Odell's body, inflicting mortal wounds. The trouble was the outcome of a law-suit.

Bankers and Merchants.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Receivers Newcombe and Smith, of the Bankers and Merchants Telegraph Company, to-day obtained an injunction from the Supreme Court restraining the bringing of suits against the company, the prosecution of suits already begun, the levying upon property of the company under execution upon judgment already obtained, and the sale of property seized under executions.

Shocking Crime in Kansas.

Lawrence, Kan., Sept. 24.—A terrible story comes from near Ottawa, Franklin County. A six-year-old child of a farmer named Waterman, half brother to two girls, Carrie and Bessie, 12 and 14 years old, was on Monday evening deliberately murdered by the two girls. The mother being away the children were left at home alone. A rope was tied around the child's neck and it was dragged about until it was dead, the head through the cutting of the rope being nearly severed from the body. At the coroner's inquest, yesterday, the girls said they had hated the boy ever since their mother had told them that he was but a half brother. The girls were held to answer for murder.

Tragic Death of a Member of the British Parliament.

MCKINNEY, Wy., Sept. 24.—The dead body of Gillie Leigh, a member of the British Parliament, who strayed from a party of English tourists eighty days since, has been found at the foot of a precipitous cliff in the Big Horn mountains.

A Rumseller's Crime.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A diabolical attempt was made early this morning to destroy a house in which seven persons were sleeping. Fortunately the flames were smothered in time to save all the inmates, except one, who died from her terrible burns, soon after being removed. When the fire was put out, it was found that everything in the house had been saturated with kerosene oil, and the gas was everywhere turned on. A sofa had been saturated with the oil, and the chairs piled on it in the front room and then set on fire. A fire was also started in a closet. Kerosene steeped wood and shavings were scattered everywhere in the house. A rumseller who lives in the house has been arrested for the crime.

Burned to the Water's Edge.

POINT AU PIC, Que., Sept. 23.—The steamer Saguenay, on the way to Quebec with a number of British scientists and other passengers on board, caught fire here last night and burned to the water's edge. The crew and passengers were saved.

Horse Thieves In Montana.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 25.—A special dispatch to the Journal from Virginia City, Montana, says, the bodies of two horse thieves were discovered suspended from a tree on Poplar river yesterday. This makes thirty-seven thieves lynched by vigilants this season.

Butchery In Burmah.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Advices from Burmah state that a sanguinary outbreak had occurred in the jail at Mandalay, Several hundred convicts were killed.

The Will of Hon. F. B. Hayes.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—The will of Hon. Francis B. Hayes, after generous provision for his relatives, makes the following public bequests: To Dartmouth College, $10,000, the income to be applied to the support of the school for department founded by the late Abiel Chandler; to the trustees of Berwick Academy $10,000, and to Harvard College $10,000 for the purchase of books for its library.

Two Millions Embezzlement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The World tomorrow will say that the firm of Arnold & Constable have lost by the embezzlement of their employes, including Messrs. Seymour and Pedder, nearly $2,000,000; that of this amount Pedder alone took nearly a million. Pedder and Seymour, sometime since, made over all their property to the firm and have so far escaped prosecution. Mr. Arnold, the paper says, declines either to contradict or affirm the statement.

The proverb, "You can't always tell what you sometimes least expect the most," was recently verified at Madera, Cal. The Democrats formed a campaign club, but when they came to name it, the proposition to call it after Cleveland and Hendricks was voted down, and "Blaine and Logan" was substituted by a vote of 23 to 17.

Newport as an English Town.

The gentlemen sailors, of whom there were many hundreds in the town, made it a not very difficult matter for the large number of privateers owned by the merchants of the place, to obtain all of this class of marines that they needed, which in some cases called for eighty men. These persons were not required to do any work in the management of the vessel, but simply to enjoy themselves as best they could until some unfortunate victim appeared in sight, and then, when near enough, to do the fighting, and afterwards, if successful, the stealing. We can easily imagine how recklessly the gentlemen sailors when on shore spent their ill-gotten gains, and in riotous living soon squandered their portion of the proceeds, and were again ready to sign the articles of some privateer, still dignified with the title of gentlemen sailors.

J. O. S.

From the Newport Mercury of Sep. 16, 1760.

For the benefit of Mr. Kretschel, a concert of music will be performed in the Colony-house (Court House) on Thursday the 18th inst. at 3 o'clock P. M. Tickets may be had of Messrs. Silas Cooke, James Keith, Samuel Brenton, Samuel Wickham, Isaac Eliezer, Nathaniel Bird and of Mr. Kretschel, at his house, at three pounds each. (in value about fifty cents.)

[John Ernest Kretschel was at that time organist of Trinity church. He was elected to that office Nov. 21, 1757 and held the situation up to some time in 1769, when at a meeting of the vestry Oct 9th of that year it was voted that the salary of the organist, Mr. John E. Kretschel be paid to his widow up to Jan. 1, 1770.]

On a cruising voyage against His Majesty's enemies, the schoot or Saucers, a prime sailer mounted with 8 carriage and 10 swivel guns, Daniel Fones commander. All gentlemen sailors and others, as they have an opportunity of making their fortunes by repairing on board her, are requested to do it soon as she will sail in ten days.

From the issue of Sept. 23, 1770.

Now fitting out to cruise against His Majesty's enemies. The privateer brigantine Diana, Samuel Sweet commander, mounting 14 four pounders, with swivels, small arms, blunderbusses &c in proportion, a prime sailer, is to carry 80 men, and will be ready to proceed on her cruise in 14 days. All gentlemen sailors, and others that have the inclination to proceed on board said brigantine may expect the best treatment from the captain and officers. The articles may be seen at Mr. McNeare on Long Wharf, or on board of said brigantine, now lying at the wharf of Mr. Robert Taylor. A good surgeon is wanted for the privateer.

Two dollars reward.—Run away on the 4th inst. from Abel Michener, an Indian wench named Mary Jones, about 30 years of age, had a large black mole on her nose and limps a little.

Run away last Thursday from James Hardy of Newport, Innholder, an Indian woman, named Vice Hill (formerly belonging to Thomas Atwood) about 25 years of age, of middling stature, and well set. Had on a light striped short gown, and a black quilted petticoat. Whoever delivers her to her master shall receive two dollars reward, and be paid the necessary charges. And whoever entertains or conceals her shall be prosecuted according to law, by James Hardy.

From the issue of Nov. 25th 1760.

Any person wanting a complete accountant may apply to Maylem, who has transacted that business in New York for two years, agreeable to the most professed rules of the Italian, and to the highest satisfaction of his employer.

From the loose waste to form the Journal neat The Ledger model and the acct complete.

Run away from Robert Elliot, of Newport, an Indian servant named Christopher Squeb, about 22 years of age, and 5 ft 10 inches high, with short black hair. Had on when he went away a green short soldier's coat and blue breeches, with a pair of trowsers over them. Whoever secures said Indian and conveys him to Samuel Bours in Newport, shall receive four dollars, as a reward, and be paid the necessary charges.

To be sold for want of employment a very likely, healthy negro girl about 16 years of age capable of doing any kind of household work and can be well recommended. Enquire of J. Franklin.

From the issue of Dec. 2d, 1760.

On the 28th of Nov. Mr. Christopher Ellery, merchant, youngest son of the Hon. William Ellery, Esq., was married to the agreeable Miss Polly Vernon, daughter of Mr. Samuel Vernon, of this town, merchant.

From the issue of Dec. 16, 1760.

To be sold at the shop joining the Printing-office, near the middle of the Parade, by James Franklin, Poor Richard's large and pocket almanacs, for this year 1761, by the dozen or single.

From the issue of Jan. 13, 1761.

To be sold, a strong healthy negro wench, about 26 years of age, can wash, iron and do any kind of household work; she has a child about 7 months old. Enquire of J. Franklin.

Whereas an advertisement was inserted in this paper, in the month of November last, forbidding all persons to sell, or give to a negro fellow, known by the name of One, any kind of liquor, or to employ him without the knowledge of his master, either as a chimney-sweeper or any other drudgery.—Notwithstanding which, the said chimney sweeper is still supplied with liquor, to the prejudice of his master, and the great danger of this town, more especially at this season of the year; for which reason he has engaged a number of people, who have promised to exert themselves to the utmost, to discover those who are guilty, and they may depend upon it, when detected, that they will be prosecuted with the greatest vigor. The reward of twenty pounds, offered in the said advertisement, will be punctually paid by Jacob Isaacks.

On Thursday, the 8th inst, died in South Kingston, in the 85th year of his age, Robert Robinson, Esq., a gentleman who, for a number of years, sustained many honorable posts under the crown. On the Saturday following his remains were decently interred.

Why They Die in the Shell.

From the investigations we have made, and with the cooperation of those who are operating incubators, we have become inclined to the opinion that one of the difficulties of artificial hatching is that the temperature is kept too high about the nineteenth or twentieth day. Some of the best results have been secured when the heat has been maintained at 104 deg. and even at 106 deg. at time of hatching, but later trials show that at the start the heat should be rather high, above 105 deg. and then allowed gradually to reduce to 102. When the heat is high the moisture should be supplied plentifully, as the greater the temperature the more moisture required to saturate the air in the egg drawer. Should the heat be high about the time of hatching, a fever heat is created, and the chick becomes exhausted by reason of the heat, the lack of oxygen, and insufficient moisture. Too much or too little heat causes the chicks to come out weak, and as the chick for the first ten days is not easily killed, either by high heat or other causes, after the second week the moisture must be amply provided, the eggs cooled well every day, the heat kept at 102 deg., and the turning done promptly twice a day.

Brief Rules For Butter Making.

The following rules are copied from a pamphlet issued by Dr. J. B. Marquis, of Norwich, N. Y., describing his methods;

1. Decide your line of dairying—butter, or cheese, or both.

2. Select your cows according to the line of dairying chosen.

3. Test each cow separately, and reject all not suited to your line of dairying, or that fail in quality or quantity of milk.

4. Feed liberally, have pure water always accessible, and keep a mixture of equal parts of salt, ashes and sulphur within reach of the cows.

5. Be sure your stables are thoroughly ventilated, remove all droppings immediately, and freely use absorbents and deodorizes—such as saw-dust, dry earth, or cut straw, never omitting a liberal use of plaster.

6. Be scrupulously clean in every particular, both in keeping the cows and in milking and handling the milk.

7. By all means, avoid exposure of the milk to the hot sun and to foul air.

8. Air and cool your milk as fast as possible, down to at least 70 degrees if you carry it any distance to a factory or creamery. Do the same if you make it into cheese at home, though you need not go below 80 degrees if made up immediately.

9. When milk is kept over night to be carried to a factory, the temperature should be reduced as low as 60 degrees.

10. If milk is set at home for cream, the sooner it can be set after milking and the higher the temperature the better, as cream rises best and almost wholly while the temperature is falling.

11. Never reduce the temperature below 40 degrees, as a lower temperature has a tendency to chill the product and injure its keeping quality, and it also expands the water, rendering its relatively greater density less instead of increasing it. To go 5 degrees below 40 degrees would have practically the same effect as raising the temperature 5 degrees, and to that extent retard the rising of the cream.

12. Skim as soon as the cream is all up, or so much of it as you wish to take from the milk.

13. Keep your cream if not churned immediately, at a temperature of 51 degrees, or below, but not below 40 degrees.

14. Churn at such a temperature between 55 and 64 degrees, as experience shows you is best. Conditions vary the temperature for churning.

15. Stop the churning when the butter is in granules about the size of wheat kernels.

16. Draw off the buttermilk and wash in clean water before gathering the butter, until the water runs clear. If one washing is in brine, it is all the better, as brine congulates the cheesy matter, which dissolves and is then washed out.

17. Salt to suit customers, using none but refined salt made for dairy purposes. The best American salt is as good as any.

18. Put up in such packages as are demanded by your market. If for long keeping, pack in firkins, set in a cool sweet place, and keep the butter covered with brine.

Nothing so Good as Lime.

The best treatment for ivy poison is lime. Slake a small piece of lime, making a solution about as thick as cream, and apply to the inflamed surface and water-blisters, morning and night. Three days or less will kill poison effectually. I suffered severely several times, in spite of the best medical treament, the poison running its nine days' course, but have yet to hear of a case that was not cured by lime within the time I name. There is no sloughing off, but the blisters are dried and the poison counteracted, while the parts are left sound and healthy.—[Toxicus, Springfield, Mass,

Agricultural Notes and Hints.

The best time to apply manure to land is a year before it is to be ploughed. Thus it is equally distributed and made immediately available to the plant. Applying it just before ploughing does not give much real practical benefit, at any rate not so much as by the former plan.

The best time to cut corn is when a majority of the ears get well glazed over or specked, and before the leaves have turned white. It should all be housed if possible within two weeks after it is cut.

It is strange that poultry keeping on a large scale has never yet been made profitable. The secret of success is attention to the smallest details.

In dry, well tilled soils, lucern will be found to be a valuable fodder crop, giving four crops every year. It must be kept free from weeds, and the soil must be dry.

Consumption of grain has kept pace with the increased production; we will probably, notwithstanding this, have low prices for some time yet.

The first dairy Fair was held in Wisconsin in 1875, and now Sheboygan county has ninety cheese factories.

Give the sheep clear dry floors and runs. Damp and cold are to be avoided; also impure air.

Rub cornmeal over very greasy plates, and give it to the chickens and to the dish-washer.

Leaves are the best of mulching material, but they must be held down by brush or cornstalks.

Household Hints.

Economy in the Kitchen.—How to use the pieces that are left from dinner, is a question of interest to most cooks, and the way in which most of them settle the matter is not always very satisfactory. A little cold meat chopped and warmed over in fat is not always an appetizing dish. But before deciding upon throwing away your cold bits try this way of warming them: Put into a saucepan any gravy you may have left, one tablespoonful of tomato catsup, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one onion chopped very fine, and pepper and salt to taste. Let them all simmer gently. Then remove the saucepan from the fire, and let the gravy cool. Skim off the fat. Then cut your bits of cold meat into very thin slices, dip them into flour, and lay them in the gravy. Let this simmer gently for five minutes, but do not let it boil, for the boiling of cold, well-cooked meat makes it tough; thicken with flour, and serve with baked or mashed potatoes.

To Remove Mildew From Cloth.—Dick recommends to first wash well with soap; or steep in a weak solution of caustic soda, rinse well, and then steep for several hours in a decanted solution of chlorinated lime containing one-half pound to a gallon; then rinse thoroughly and dry in the sun. It may be necessary, in some cases, to repeat the operation. The above methods apply only to uncolored cotton and linen fabrics. Great care should be taken to entirely remove the bleaching solution by thorough rinsing, or the goods will be rendered rotten. It would be advisable to rinse first in weak vinegar (one pint of vinegar to a gallon of water), then in water. For colored fabrics, the use of good soap rubbed on the spots, with thorough rinsing and exposure to the sunlight, is probably the safest means.

Treatment of Toothache.—The Popular Science News recommends that those suffering from toothache would do well to follow this advice, as it is founded upon actual experience: For ordinary nervous toothache, which is caused by the nervous system being out of order or by excessive fatigue, a very hot bath will so sooth the nerves that sleep will naturally follow, and, upon getting up, the patient will feel very much refreshed and the toothache will be a thing past. For what is known as "jumping" toothache, hot, dry flannel applied to the neck and face is very effective. For common toothache, which is caused by indigestion, or by strong, sweet acid or anything very hot or cold in a decayed tooth, a little piece of cotton steeped in a strong camphor or oil of cloves is the best remedy.

Tomato Sauce.—Tomato sauce which will keep well is made of one dozen perfectly ripe tomatoes, two teaspoonfuls of the best powdered ginger, one head of garlic chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one dessertspoonful of cayenne pepper and one of salt. Put the tomatoes into a stone jar and let them stand in a hot oven until they are tender. When cold remove the skins and mix the above named ingredients with the pulp and juice in the jar. Then put it away in bottles and seal tightly. This sauce is said to keep well for years. The tomatoes should be kept in the oven for several hours, and become thoroughly cooked.

Carriage Wrap.—A pretty carriage wrap for the baby, which will be useful in the early Autumn, is made of Turkish toweling. Choose that with scarlet stripes and scarlet polka dots; trim the edge with the scarlet and white trimming which resembles torchon, but is still heavier and more durable. For Winter there is nothing so handsome or so comfortable as a square of fur, lined with flannel. The edge of the flannel should be pinked, or cut in scallops, and for further ornamentation the baby's monogram, or initials, may be embroidered in the centre of the flannel.

Brine Pickles.—Take a stone jar and sprinkle some course rock salt on the bottom; then put in a layer of cucumbers, then a layer of salt until the jar is full. They will make a brine for themselves. As they settle down, fill up if you wish to. When wanted for use, take out what is required, and pour boiling water over them; soak until fresh enough, then put into vinegar. To keep pickles free from scum, they must be washed clean and the little black pickles removed.

Canning Peas.—Peas may be prepared for canning by simply cooking as for the table, leaving out the seasoning, and filling the cans quite up to the top while boiling hot. Have the peas rather young and tender. Add the seasoning when you open the cans to use them. Keep in a cool, dark place, free from dampness.

Chow-chow.—Tomato chow-chow is made of six large tomatoes, one large onion, one green pepper, one tablespoonful of salt, two of brown sugar, and two small teacups of vinegar. Peel the tomatoes, cut them into very small pieces, and chop the onion and pepper very fine; stew gently with the vinegar, etc., for an hour.

Diphtheria.—Dr. Hutton says that diphtheria is caused by ochlesis, or crowd poison, and that a small, overcrowded, ill-ventilated house may prove a diphtheria factory. He also thinks that many patients die for want of food and stimulants to tide them over the crisis.

Fashion's Fancies.

Plaids are fashionable.

Plaited skirts are extensively worn.

Gold crown bonnets are out of style.

Red is to be the most popular color this winter.

Broad bands of velvet are worn around the neck.

Plain tulle veils are preferred to the dotted net ones.

Long tight fitting polonaises are extensively worn.

Earrings are not worn in the daytime at summer resorts.

Colored linen cuffs and collars are growing in popularity.

Leather belts are extensively worn with all kinds of toilets.

Shoulder capes are no longer worn, except by elderly ladies.

Brown, in a variety of shades, will be very much worn this fall.

For light weight woolen dresses the albatross cloths are in great favor.

Velvet ribbons are no longer worn around the throat with walking costumes.

The gold and silver beadlike bracelets that lap on the arm are very fashionable.

Leather belts are again much used with simple dresses of flannel and wash fabrics.

Cuffs are very narrow. They are worn with small stud buttons of hammered silver.

More trained evening dresses are worn this season than have appeared in several years back.

The sleeves of a number of the newest sateen dresses are slashed and filled in with Oriental lace.

Skirts are not worn as short as they were six months ago. Now they barely escape touching the ground.

With the polonaise habit there are no paniers. They are replaced by long loops of silk lined with velvet.

Bead bracelets are coming in again. A pair recently seen made of lapis lazuli and coral were exceedingly pretty.

Dark silks, foulards and satteens are now trimmed with Oriental lace. The fashion is anything but a tasteful one.

New traveling suits have the tucks of the skirt and of the Norfolk jacket protected by cordings of alligator skin.

Worth is now making costumes with double sleeves, one of which represents a puffed undersleeve with a wristband.

Canvass belts come in white, red, brown or blue, to match the color of a flannel dress or that of a braid used for trimming.

The fashionable hat this fall will be made of coarse black or brown straw, with a pointed front and back and a rolled brim.

Dark grey and tan colored Mousquetaire gloves are fashionably worn. Mitts are now seldom seen, and silk gloves are not so much worn as they were a month ago.

Quick Relief!

When a man has suffered from Rheumatism only a little while, and is relieved from his pain, he is happy and delighted. But suppose he has Suffered for more than a third of a century.

Alvin Grim, of Yale, Iowa, writes: "Athlophoros has helped me much. The pain in my limbs is all gone, but some lameness is left yet, and will there might be, for I have been troubled for thirty-five years with Rheumatism."

Mrs. A. B. Baker, of Chicago,

Had rheumatic pains in her back for fifteen years, and Mr. Baker had been the victim of Rheumatism until his head was drawn down over his left shoulder. Mr. Baker writes:

"Half a bottle of Athlophoros made me as good as new. My wife has taken the other half, and has not complained of her back since. She says her back never was so free from pain and ache as it has been since she has taken the Athlophoros."

There are many people who think that because they have suffered so long, and have tried so many medicines in vain, they must "suffer on their three score years." But you see what Athlophoros has done.

However Old your Case;
However Severe your Pains;
However Great your Disappointments,

Try Athlophoros

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE.

TRADE MARK. THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY. An unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency and all Diseases that follow as a sequence of Self Abuse: as loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to Insanity or Consumption and a Premature Grave. Beware of advertisements to refund money, when druggists from whom the medicine is bought do not refund, but refer you to the manufacturers, and the requirements are such that they are seldom, if ever, complied with. See their written guarantee. A trial of one single package of Gray's Specific will convince the most skeptical of its real merits. On account of counterfeits, we have adopted the Yellow Wrapper, the only genuine. Full particulars in our pamphlet, which we desire to send free by mail to every one. The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package, or six packages for $5, or will be sent free by mail on the receipt of the money, by addressing THE GRAY MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y. NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS

Dr. Lewis is always successful.

The Glory of a Man is in his Strength,

Nerve or Physical Force when Lost Quickly Regained by Consulting

Dr. C. J. Lewis,

WHO, after intense study and deep research, has lately discovered a new, extraordinary, quick, certain and inexpensive cure for diseases of the Brain and Spinal Cord, Spermatorrhœa, Seminal Weakness, Fluid Escapes, Impotency, and Deranged Functions of the Nervous and Generative Systems. THIS NEW and MARVELLOUS MEDICAL TREATMENT has cured the most desperate forms of Nervous disorders in both young and old. To debilitated youth it bestows the vigor of manhood, and in advanced age it establishes the vigor of youth without the possibility of failure. URINARY COMPLAINTS, Acute or Chronic Discharges, Stricture, Retention of Urine, Gravel, Kidney or Bladder Disorders. Syphilis, Secondary Symptoms, Eruptions, Skin Diseases, are all absolutely cured without the use of mercury, copiva or injections. No restriction in diet or hindrance from business. RECENT CASES CURED IN THREE OR FOUR DAYS. Patients whose cases have been neglected, badly treated, or pronounced incurable, are particularly invited to visit Dr. Lewis. A written guarantee of cure given in all cases undertaken. In practice 30 years.

☞ Dr. Lewis is frequently consulted by many who have been completely discouraged of ever being cured after having experimented with various advertised nostrums, which invariably do more harm than good as every phase of disease demands different and special treatment. To those who may have been disappointed, Dr. Lewis would say consult him and he will restore the disappointed one to all the duties of life, whether they be physical or mental, pertaining to married life or "single blessedness."

CONSULTATIONS, MEDICINES, &c., $5.
WORKING CLASSES, $2.50.

DR. LEWIS is permanently located at 129 Friendship Street Providence, R. I., One door from Richmond street (off Broad street). Office hours from 9 to 2 and 5 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 2, not later except by appointment, letter or telegram.

Rheumatism Effectually Cured. Female Complaints Skillfully Treated.

Notice to Country Patients.

☞ Dr. LEWIS will, on full description of case, with fee enclosed, immediately send a supply of his valuable medicines, accompanied with instructions and advice, for the cure of the above distressing complaints. 4-23tf

Friendship.

A tiny, e'ender, silken thread
Is friendship, and we make it
Bind hearts and lives to hearts and lives:
But o'en a breath may shake it,
And oft it takes but one wee word—
But one wee word to break it!

It draws the lips in smiling shape,
It draws the look of pleasure
From eye to eye when hands touch hands,
When two hearts beat one measure;
And draws a meaning from a word
Which mutes that word a treasure.

Like string of a tuneful lute or harp
Between glad souls 'tis holden,
And 'ove's fond fingers on the thread
Make music rare and golden—
Make music such as tender hearts
Could live, and ne'er grow old, in.

But if a breath may shake it, let
That breath come near it never;
And never spoken be that word
Which friendship's ties may sever;
But let the cord grow stronger till
The dawning of Forever.

Sunshine and Shadow.

"The officer tells me you were drunk and disorderly, and that you have often been arrested for the same offense," said Justice Foote yesterday, as he frowned through his eye glasses at a hard looking woman who stood before him. "I have no sympathy for women like you and I will fine you a bun—"

"Papa!" interrupted a little voice, clear and sweet, and two soft arms stole around the judicial neck and a soft face was laid against the judicial cheek.

Justice Foote's frown changed to a smile. "Aha, you rascal!" said he, seizing his little daughter and seating her on his knee. "So you came to see me just while I am hard at work, did you, and you slipped up behind me and tried to scare your old Pap? Ah, you!" and he gave her a great hug.

Clerk Clinton poised his pen, ready to record the fine; the lawyers took their seats with a smile; the prisoner was left alone before the bar. She looked at the child and passed her sleeve over her eyes. For five minutes the old head and the young head nodded at each other; while from two red lips came a wonderful story of "Oh! such fun at the park! and how funny the deers looked!" Then a bright ten-cent piece was produced from the Justice's pocket and put into a little hand. Then came a long, hard hug, and the little girl skipped away, shouting good bye as she went through the crowd.

When Justice Foote turned his face toward the court room there was spread over it a smile that would have graced the countenance of a saint. "Where was I?" he asked, as he rubbed his glasses and looked down at the sheet. "Oh, yes, this drunk and disorderly case." Then he looked at the prisoner. "You look like you might have been a decent girl once," said he; I will give you one more chance. The prisoner is discharged."

The Temper.

If people generally knew what an advantage to them it was to be cheerful, there would be fewer sour faces in the world and infinitely less ill temper. A man never gains anything by exhibiting his annoyance by his face, much less by bursting into passion. As it is neither manly nor wise to yield like a child pettishly to every cross, so it is alike foolish and absurd to allow feelings of anger to deprive us of self-control. There never was a man in any controversy who lost his temper who did not come near losing his cause in consequence. If ever a person plays the game of his enemies it is when he is in a passion. Acquaintances shun men of proverbially ill temper; friends drop away from them; even; wives and children gradually learn to fear them more than to love. Thousands of men owe their want of success in life to neglecting the control of their temper. Nor have they the excuse that it is an infirmity which cannot be restrained; for Washington, though naturally of the most passionate disposition, disciplined himself until he passed for a person utterly impassive. No man who neglects his temper can be happy any more than he can make those happy around. Good temper is gold, is beyond price. Bad temper is a curse to the possessor and to society.

A Hearse that was Sure to Please.

A genuine son of Erin called the other day at the shop of Mr. R——, who is a hearse maker. "Cud I see Misther Murphy's hearse," said he—"the wan that's goin' to Clinton?" Mr. R—— replied that he could, and led the way through the wareroom. Pat looked about him; his eyes glistened.

"Is it wan o' these?" inquired he.

"Better looking one than that," was the reply.

Pat began to grin and his delight increased when he saw the completed vehicle with its immaculate varnish and silver fringes.

"Sure, and its an illigant thing. Sure, an' Murphy's the man for stoyle," said he. He walked around it, hands in his pocket, head on one side and finally burst out with, "Sure, there'll be suicides in Clinton!"—

They are going off on a journey.

"Which shall I carry?" he asked; the baby or the dog?" "You had better carry the baby," she replied, "and I will take care of Beauty, dear little fellow. I wouldn't have anything happen to him for the world."

Gen. Lee on Frankness.

A letter of Gen. Lee to his son, written in 1862, has just been given to the public, in which he discourses on the value of frankness:

I am just in the act of leaving home for New Mexico. My fine old regiment has been ordered to that distant region, and I must hasten to see that they are properly taken care of. I have but little to add in reply to your letters of March 26, 27 and 28. Your letters breathed a true spirit of frankness; they have already given myself and your mother great pleasure. You must study to be frank with the world; frankness is the child of honesty and courage. Say what you mean to do on every occasion, and take it for granted you mean to do right. If a friend asks a favor you should grant it if it is reasonable; if not, tell him plainly why you cannot; you will wrong him and yourself by equivocation of any kind. Never do a wrong thing to make a friend or to keep one; the man who requires you to do so is dearly bought as a sacrifice. Deal kindly but firmly with all your classmates; you will find it the policy which wears best. Above all, do not appear to others what you are not. If you have any fault to find with any one, tell him, not others, of what you complain; there is no more dangerous experiment than that of undertaking to be one thing before a man's face and another behind his back. We should live, act and say nothing to the injury of anyone. It is not only best as a matter of principle, but it is the path to peace and honor.

She Married Well.

First Young Lady—"Why, Jennie, you dear little sweet! I've not met you in a year. Where have you been?"

"To Chicago, Laura."

"And did you not like it out there? You married, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes."

"Did you do well?"

"Pretty well, though not so well as I expected. The court only allowed me $150 a month alimony."

"What a shame!"

"Did you ever think what you would do if you had the Duke of Westminster's income?" Village pastor: "No; but I have sometimes wondered what the Duke would do if he had mine."

Most Certainly A Specific.

"Infallible" and "specific" are round, strong terms for a remedy, especially for those determined and painful disease—Rheumatism and Neuralgia. But ATHLOPHOROS seems to deserve them. Says Rev. Wm. F. Corbit, Pastor George St. M. E. Church, New Haven, Conn.: "I wish to say that for Inflammatory Rheumatism ATHLOPHOROS is infallible. I suffered for two Weeks the most excruciating torture. Was almost instantly relieved by ATHLOPHOROS. If there is a specific for the disease ATHLOPHOROS is most certainly it."

A bay rollof Seltzer.

I could scarcely speak; it was almost impossible to breathe through my nostrils. Using Ely's Cream Balm a short time I was entirely relieved. My head has not been so clear nor voice so strong in years. I recommend this admirable remedy to all afflicted with Catarrh or Colds in the Head.—J. O. THOMSON, Shoe Merchant, Elizabeth, N. J. Narrow escape—The chimney flue.

Officeholders.

The office held by the Kidneys is one of importance. They act as natures sluice-way to carry off the extra liquids from the system and with them the impurities both those that are taken into the stomach and those that are formed in the blood. Any clogging or inaction of these organs is therefore important. Kidney-Wort is Nature's efficient assistant in keeping the kidneys in good working order, strengthens them and inducing healthy action. If you would get well and keep well, take Kidney-Wort.

Helped Her Out.

"For years have been a severe sufferer from pains in the back. Tried various applications. One bottle of Thomas' Eclectric Oil entirely cured me. Cured others equally quick." Mrs. Benning of 14th St., Buffalo, wrote this.

A few years ago the women of India were not allowed to learn to read. Now there are 126,318 girls attending schools established for them.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BURCHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair, growing vigorously, and am convinced that had I used the first of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the Mc Arthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. It also promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which beating time generally, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

NEWPORT COUNTY NEWS.

PORTSMOUTH

Mr. John D. Clarke, and his daughter who lives in New York State, who had been sent for on account of the sickness of Mrs. Clarke, arrived here on Monday.

The Rev. Frank Woods Baker, rector of Zion's Episcopal Church, of Newport, officiated at St. Mary's, in this town on Sunday forenoon.

A very severe thunder storm visited us at about 5 o'clock, Tuesday morning. The lighting was very sharp, and in several instances the thunder followed it so soon that it was startling. Rain fell in torrents for a short time, washing the loose earth from the roads and rendering them very stony in many places. From the appearance of the roads it would seem to be of little use to appropriate money for the repair of them, for, with the faculties for making good roads possessed, the present miserable apologies for roads that we have in a large proportion of their length, ought to cause a blush of shame to mantle the face of any town thus favorably situated.

Mr. Peleg Almy one of our oldest residents, who will be 92 if he lives until October, is still very vigorous for a man of his years. Last week he engaged in helping to shock the corn that was raised upon his farm, which is not light labour even for younger men than he is.

ITEMS.—The Rev. Dr. T. A. Eaton and wife have returned to New York.

The ladies of the Christian Church Society are intending to have a fair the last week in October.

MIDDLETOWN.

The Middletown Prohibitory Caucus was held last Tuesday at the Methodist Parsonage. The meeting was organized by the election of the following officers viz; Anthony M. Kimber, chairman; William P. Buffum, Secretary; Joseph S. Anthony, treasurer.

The following delega'es to the Convention were elected, with power to fill vacancies—viz: Anthony M. Kimber, Rev. Wm. Wright, William P. Buffum, and Mrs. Joseph Chase.

The Caucus of the Republican party in Middletown will be held in the town hall on Friday evening Oct. 3d at 7.30 o'clock. Let there be a full attendance.

TIVERTON.

On Thursday evening of last week, Mr. Harry Hambly, of Tiverton, was driving through the Four Corners. He was approaching the Four Corners from the south, and it being an extremely dark night, collided with a wagon driving from the north. Mr. Hambly was thrown from his carriage and had a very narrow escape. The carriage was demolished.

JAMESTOWN.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church and the South Baptist are still without regular pastors, and on Sunday Divinity Student George E. Magill, of Newport, officiated at the former and Rev. W. A. Durfee, of Block Island, at the latter. The Episcopal vacancy, it is believed, will be permanently filled within a few weeks. Rev. Mr. Cruikshank, who is ill at his new parsonage at Riverside, has the sympathy of his old parishioners here and their hearty wish for his speedy recovery. The Friends Meeting House was closed on Sunday, the last meeting of the very successful summer series having been held on the previous Sabbath, when Alice Gifford made a closing address and the Hacker family of Philadelphia were present. Undoubtedly this ancient structure, after many years of closed doors, is again becoming very useful in the service of God, and the meetings will be resumed in the summer of 1885. It is thought also that the old North Baptist Church, by another summer, will be again brought into active use. It is located in the vicinity of Conanicut Park, and cottagers and hotel patrons there might find a convenient place of worship, inasmuch as it is the only church in that part of the island.

Mr. B. L. Whitman, who has been spending the summer here and has filled the pulpit of the South Baptist Church during that time, has returned to his studies at Brown University. Mr. Whitman is but 21 years of age, yet he is even now a remarkably effective pulpit orator, and his eloquence is often like a flood of divine light upon his audience. He makes no waste of words, and his entire sermon is always one of force.

LITTLE COMPTON.

STUNNED BY ELECTRICITY.—During a thunderstorm on Tuesday morning, Mrs. Henry T. Brown wife of Postmaster Brown, who was standing near the telephone, suddenly fell to the floor, completely stunned and paralized by an electrical shock from the telephone. In a short time she recovered her faculties and was able to walk about.

NEW ENGLAND ITEMS.

RHODE ISLAND.

Among the students who have entered Brown University this year is Josiah Bartlett, who is but 14 years, and is the eldest son of Rev. Edward O. Bartlett, of Kingston, and grandson of Hon. Amos C. Barstow.

A meeting of veterans of the late war was held in Washington for the purpose of indorsing O. P. G. Clark of Rhode Island to the Secretary of the Interior for appointment as successor to Col. Dudley, Commissioner of Pensions. Mr. Clark is now Deputy Commissioner and the meeting was unanimous in his support.

Speaker Jillson of Woonsocket celebrated his 42th birthday a few days since.

Blaine & Logan clubs are being formed in nearly every town in the State.

MAINE.

Mr. Thomas Luce died in Readfield Friday at the age of 98. His life had been one of almost uninterrupted health, and up to within three weeks of his death he had not seen a sick day, been attended by a physician, or taken any medicine. He raised a family of 12 children.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Mr. Thomas E. Call of Portsmouth on Saturday cut in his garden a corn stalk which measured twelve feet in length.

VERMONT.

At Tinmouth last Friday evening Orange Rogers heard the report of a gun, the sound coming from the direction of the house. Knowing that his sons Alman and Alvin were alone at the house, he at once hastened to that place and found that the boys had gone to the room of the hired man and found as they supposed, an unloaded gun. Alvin had taken this, and pointing it at his brother, pulled the trigger. It proved to be loaded, and the contents striking Alman in the bowels, inflicted a wound from which he died in a few hours.

CONNECTICUT.

William H. Brumpton, an ex-conductor on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Road, who has recently been in business at New Haven, tried to shoot his wife Sunday, but failed. Brumpton had failed in business and tried to cut his throat about a week ago. He has been drinking badly.

Hon. John T. Waite, of Norwich, was last week nominated by the Republicans of the Third Congressional District for the seventh consecutive time.

MASSACHUSETTS.

It is reported that Mrs. Mark Hopkins will build a $500,000 house on her place at Great Barrington next season.

Rev. Ellen G. Gustin has accepted a call to the First Christian Church at West Mansfield, where she was a former pastor eight years.

It is definitely stated that a trade procession will form a part of the Worcester bi-centennial celebration, to be entirely separate from the morning parade of military and civic bodies. The general illumination will take place on the evening of Oct. 14, while the evening of the 15th will be given up to fireworks. Senator Hoar is already at work upon his address to be delivered in Mechanics' Hall on the evening of the 14th. Governor Robinson and staff have already agreed to be present.

William Lovie Tilley, formerly Probate Clerk of Newport, now a resident of Middletown, offers his services to the people as a Notary Public, to draw up instruments in writing such as wills, deeds, leases, mortgages, or would do copying of any description, all petitions to be presented to the Probate Court, or making of accounts done with dispatch and in a correct manner.

In this city, 23d inst., Clarissa H., widow of Jeremiah Peabody.

The funeral will take place from her late residence No. 362 Spring Street, at 1 o'clock this day, Sept. 27th, Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend.

She hath fallen asleep! it is well
She hath thus laid her life burden down.
Long years did she bear the stern cross,
But it fitted her brow for the crown!
She may have forgotten e'en now
That ever earth taught her to weep—
Let us say, while in sorrow we bow,
It is well she hath fallen asleep.

She hath fallen asleep! fold the robe
O'er the meek heart so pulseless and still,
She hath gone to her Father and ours,
And our grief is his glory and will!
The rest which he gives his beloved
Is hers, the untroubled and deep;
And because we so loved her we say
It is well she hath fallen asleep!

She hath fallen asleep! it is well—
She will not be weary again;
We shall lie down beside her ere long,
Then why should our weak faith complain?
We shall climb on the morn of our rising
Victor palms which the seraphim keep—
Oh! what glory will crown the beloved
In Christ, who have fallen asleep!

In this city, 23d inst., after years of patient suffering, Anne Maria Stanhope, wife of Charles L. Stanhope, and eldest daughter of the late Capt. Lewis and Mary Adams, of New Bedford, aged 65 years, 3 months and 26 days. Read Proverbs 31st chapter, 26 to 31 verses inclusive.

Lines on the Death of a Member of the W. C. T. U.

COMPOSED BY SOPHIA L. LITTLE.

So quiet and so still in life,
Gently she passed away
From this sad world of sin and strife
To Heaven's eternal day.

How beautiful it must have been,
When from the bed of death,
She saw the waiting angels round
As she resigned her breath.

Oh, not in vain those skillful hands,
Their task of love had plied,
While carrying out the work she planned
And never laid aside.

'Twas done in secret love to Him
Her heart had learned to prize;
Till added years began to dim
Her meek and patient eyes.

We do not ask the sons of Earth
Her character to paint,
Enough, that Jesus knew the worth
Of his departing saint.

And safely in his loving arms,
His weary child he bore
Above the power of death's alarm
To the celestial shore.

Farewell, sweet sister, as we dwell
Upon that look benign,
We hear a whisper, "All is well,
She is forever mine."
